Introduction

Hello, and welcome to the first edition of the ORANGE Report. ORANGE, you ask, why ORANGE? Simple, ORANGE stands for Original Rookie and Next Generation Evaluation and its purpose is simple, to provide fantasy football players, especially dynasty fantasy football players, with a draft guide designed to help them with the leagues they participate in. There are tons and tons of rookie reports that are focused, naturally, on the NFL Draft. I get it, it makes sense and it's a straight line relationship. However, how many times, as a fantasy football player, are you stuck trying to make sense of what all of this means for your team? Lots, I'd bet.

I decided to change that.

The ORANGE Report was built from the ground up by a dynasty fantasy football player with the fantasy football player in mind, first and foremost, not as an afterthought on the last page of a rookie draft guide. This guide was designed to provide fantasy football players with a clear insight as to what it means when Player A is drafted by Team Z. Does he fit in? How will his skills translate? How many players will he need to surpass in order to start? Where is he being drafted right now? What is his bye week and how tough does his schedule look? All these questions are simply a page turn away.

Finally, fantasy football player, you are no longer an afterthought!

QUARTERBACKS

Geno Smith

QB – West Virginia- Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 220      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 124"
Birthdate: 10/10/90      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: 4.59      Shuttle: -

Smith has a very strong arm that he uses with pinpoint accuracy and a very smooth release. He has great vision and decision making which are hard to teach. Smith moves through his progressions smoothly and doesn't lock onto a single receiver or doesn't give it away if he does. Smith rarely works from under center though and as such his timing, vision and accuracy might encounter early issues at the next level and may initially slow his development into an NFL caliber quarterback.

Ryan Nassib

QB – Syracuse - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 227      Vertical: 28.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 105"
Birthdate: 03/10/90      3 Cone: 7.34
40-Yard Dash: 5.06      Shuttle: 4.53

Nassib is a very polished prospect who I have no problem seeing his name called possibly in the first round. Nassib has a very good all-around game with great pocket presence and field vision. Nassib has good velocity on his throws and very good arm strength which allows him to make nearly any throw asked of him. He has very good passing mechanics with a smooth throwing motion and quick release. Nassib is fairly mobile and can use his legs to gain yards as needed.

Zac Dysert

QB – University of Miami (Ohio) - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 231      Vertical: -
Age: 23      Broad: -
Birthdate: 02/08/90      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: 4.83      Shuttle: -

I feel Dysert is going to move up draft boards like crazy during the off-season. He is so accurate with his throws that it's something to absolutely marvel at. Even when on the run and throwing a 20 yard pass Dysert can put the ball squarely in the receiver numbers. Dysert is very smart with his throws and can move through his progressions smoothly, effectively finding the best receiver for the play. His sense of the pressure around him is very good and he move effectively in the pocket either laterally or stepping up to avoid the rush. Thus far Dysert has worked almost exclusively out of the shotgun so the transition to working under the center will require some changes to the timing he has become accustomed to. Dysert isn't overly mobile so he needs to stay in the pocket to be at his best. At times when he is flushed out of the pocket he will make bad decisions in an effort to make something out of a deteriorating play. All in all Dysert's flaws are minor and he has the makings of being a very special quarterback in the NFL.

EJ Manuel

QB – Florida State University - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 237      Vertical: 34"
Age: 23      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 03/19/90      3 Cone: 7.08
40-Yard Dash: 4.65      Shuttle: 4.21

Manuel is a great all-around quarterback talent. His build is the first thing you notice, standing 6'-5" he's very tall and he has a very well built frame. Second, Manuel's arm strength is excellent, possible one of the best arms in this class. He can throw the ball downfield with ease, often looking like he's barely even trying to throw balls that most quarterbacks can't even make. Third, his poise in the pocket is great. Manuel stands tall in the face of pressure, stepping up in the pocket when needed or rolling out to buy more time. He has almost a sixth sense about the pressure around him and reacts accordingly. Fourth, when the pressure is too intense Manuel has no problem tucking the ball and running. Manuel is extremely mobile, elusive and even able to power through tackles. Manuel does have a couple of things he needs to work on, first and foremost is how his passes leave his hand. Many of Manuel's passes wobble en route to his receiver and very few of his passes are true, tight spirals. Manuel also needs to work on looking off defenders. He tends to lock onto a single receiver which allows defenders to move to the ball easier. Ball security is an issue for Manuel as he has been known to fumble more than one would expect. Overall Manuel should be a lot of help to a quarterback needy team.

Matt Barkley

QB – USC - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 227      Vertical: -
Age: 22      Broad: -
Birthdate: 09/08/90      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: 4.92      Shuttle: -

Maturity will be Barkley's major selling point when entering the NFL draft. His ability to read defenses both before and after the snap is exceptional. A four year starter in a pro-style offense makes Barkley far and away the most "NFL ready" quarterback in this year's draft class. He will be ready immediately, for a team looking for an immediate starter Barkley is the pick. While he doesn't have a cannon for an arm and his arm strength isn't anything to write home about it is adequate. His throwing precision has been fairly good over his career but seemed to dip this season, something for NFL teams to consider. His inability to win the "big games" is a bit worrying. Additionally his height, rumored to be 6'-1" will raise some eyebrows.

Tyler Wilson

QB – Arkansas - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 215      Vertical: 28.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 08/16/89      3 Cone: 7.22
40-Yard Dash: 4.95      Shuttle: 4.39

Tough quarterback who will stand in the pocket until the last moment. Great at reading defenses and finding the open man. Adequately mobile and is able to gain yards on the ground when all receiving options are covered. Tons of arm strength but can depend on that arm strength a bit too much. Will try to force balls into tight spaces a bit too much. Mechanics are unique and could even be described as "herky jerky" at times. Side arm release may see several balls batted down in the NFL. Has a propensity to throw off of his back leg as opposed to stepping into throws. I seem to be in the minority among draft gurus with this opinion but I am not overly impressed with Wilson and I wouldn't make him a franchise quarterback.

Mike Glennon

QB – North Carolina State - Senior

Height: 6'-7"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 225      Vertical: 26.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 102"
Birthdate: 12/12/89      3 Cone: 7.49
40-Yard Dash: 4.94      Shuttle: 4.52

Glennon is one of those prospects that have all of the tools but he needs to put them all together consistently. First the good, Glennon has an NFL caliber arm that can make any throw that is asked of him. He is very smart and will go through his progression effectively, finding the perfect receiver for almost every play. He moves good in the pocket, responding to pressure by moving laterally or stepping up in order to avoid the pressure. Now the bad, Glennon has accuracy issues that have everything to do with his footwork. Glennon will throw the ball off his back leg very often or will barely use the bottom half of his body to help direct his throws. Glennon depends immensely, almost exclusively, on his arm strength as opposed to augmenting it with proper mechanics. Glennon also will try to force throws into situations he shouldn't. He throws into double coverage way too often and will sometimes believe he can thread the needle, ignoring traps that are being laid for him in zone defenses. If Glennon can work on his mechanics and on not trying to win the game with every throw then he could develop very nicely for an NFL team.

Matt Scott

QB - Arizona - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 213      Vertical: 31"
Age: 22      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 09/20/90      3 Cone: 6.69
40-Yard Dash: 4.69      Shuttle: 3.99

Scott is an extremely mobile quarterback who has no problem gaining yards either through the air or on the ground if need be. Scott is a fully featured part of the Arizona rushing backfield; many times he will tuck the ball on designed rushes. Scott is accurate while passing the ball on the run and creates a headache for defenses who don't know whether to defend a potential run by him or stay in pass protection to guard against a roll-out pass. He gets the ball out of his with an extremely quick release. Scott is a fairly accurate passer in the short to medium range. Long range throws tend to be much less accurate. He also has a side arm release that sees several passes batted down at the line of scrimmage due to his lower release. Scott works almost exclusively out of the shotgun to buy him time both for his rushing holes to develop as well as to permit him time to wait for his receivers to get free. He will need to work on his game taking snaps from under center.

Landry Jones

QB - Oklahoma - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 225      Vertical: 31"
Age: 24      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 04/04/89      3 Cone: 7.12
40-Yard Dash: 5.11      Shuttle: 4.30

Jones looks every part the role of a prototypical NFL quarterback standing 6'-5" and weighing 220 lbs. Jones is an amazingly accurate passer who is able to put just the right touch on a ball to put it in the perfect place for his receiver. Jones has a decent arm and is able to make all the right throws to methodically move the ball down field. He steps into his throws but has enough arm strength to be able to complete throws on the run. Jones has supreme confidence in his accuracy and arm strength and as such he will many times try to fit the ball into tight spaces. While this has worked thus far in the NFL this could be an issue if it isn't controlled. Jones is strictly a pocket passer with limited mobility and has little scrambling or rushing ability. If pressured by a pass rush Jones sometimes throws the ball into questionable situations as opposed to just throwing it away. His limited exposure to taking the snap under the center could be an issue as well. Jones has worked almost exclusively out of the pistol and his timing and footwork could be affected adversely moving away from the pistol.

Colton Chapple

QB – Harvard - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 196      Vertical: 37"
Age: -      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.90
40-Yard Dash: 4.65      Shuttle: 4.19

If Chapple does well at his pro day he may just be able to sneak into the late rounds of the draft. Chapple is an incredibly accurate passer completing roughly two-thirds of his passes last season! He has great coverage reading skills and goes through his progressions well which he uses to almost always find the open receiver on any given play. If he can't find a receiver he is also a fairly mobile quarterback accumulating over 600 rushing yard and nine rushing touchdowns. Chapple has good throwing mechanics and good arm strength, coupled with his accuracy he is able to complete a good percentage of his deep passes. Two things that will hold back his draft stock are the fact he did not play elite competition due to Harvard being in the Ivy League. Second, he has worked exclusively out of the pistol and shotgun formations, taking no snaps under center.

Ryan Griffin

QB – Tulane - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 221      Vertical: 25.5"
Age: 24      Broad: 101"
Birthdate: 11/17/89      3 Cone: 7.64
40-Yard Dash: 5.20      Shuttle: 4.78

Griffin has all the tools you're looking for in a professional quarterback, great height, decent arm and the smarts to play the position. Griffin stands at 6'-4" and stands tall in the pocket to take advantage of every inch of his frame. He has enough arm strength to make all the throws required of him. Griffin rarely makes bad decisions with his throws so he doesn't put his team in jeopardy with any kind of recklessness. He does need to work on his ball placement as some of his throws require his receiver to alter their routes.

Tyler Bray

QB – Tennessee - Senior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 232      Vertical: 29"
Age: 21      Broad: 100"
Birthdate: 12/27/91      3 Cone: 7.20
40-Yard Dash: 5.05      Shuttle: 4.51

Bray is very similar to Glennon. Bray stands at roughly 6'-6" so obviously he looks the part of an NFL quarterback. Bray is very comfortable in the pocket and can move around it to buy more time. Bray has an abundance of arm strength. He can throw the ball downfield with ease and the velocity on his throws is incredible. However, Bray tends to rely almost exclusively on that strength, rarely stepping into his throws. Due to this his passes are not very accurate and his completion percentage bares that out. Bray will regularly try to make tough throws into coverage, perhaps due to his belief in his own arm strength. Bray also throws the ball very low for a player his size, as such he sees a lot of balls batted down at the line of scrimmage and as the ball travels through the defensive coverage.

Ryan Aplin

QB - Arkansas State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 202      Vertical: 31"
Age: -      Broad: 110"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.25
40-Yard Dash: 4.64      Shuttle: 4.46

Aplin's biggest selling point is his accuracy; he can boast a 64.5% completion percentage over his college career which is extremely good. What is even more interesting is in his senior year he had a completion percentage of 68%! He is very good at finding the open receiver and finding the holes in the defense. Additionally, Aplin has above average mobility, allowing him to gain yards both through the air and on the ground. He has decent arm strength but puts good velocity on the ball. Nearly all of his work is done out of the shotgun so he will have to transition to working under center in the NFL. Aplin's throwing motion is sidearm in nature which is generally not a good thing but that being said it seems to work for him. When pressured Aplin will tend to take risks, something he needs to work on.

Dayne Crist

QB - Kansas University - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 239      Vertical: 29"
Age: 23      Broad: 107"
Birthdate: 10/09/89      3 Cone: 7.48
40-Yard Dash: 4.94      Shuttle: 4.46

Crist has just not had the best luck at the college level. He twice had seasons cut short due to injury. First his 2009 season was cut short due to a torn right ACL and then a year later he suffered a ruptured patella tendon to his left knee which ended his 2010 season. Then in 2011 Crist lost his starting job to Tommy Rees. Following the end of the 2011 season Crist transferred to Kansas where he became the starter. In 2012 Crist slowly lost playing time. All of that being said Crist has a strong arm and is generally pretty accurate. He stands very tall in the pocket and has excellent mechanics. On the down side Crist will make ill-advised throws which cost his team dearly. When Crist makes deep throws his accuracy disappears. It's tough to tell if this is due to his own short-comings or if it is due to the lack of dependable receivers around him. It's worth noting that Crist's accuracy has dropped significantly due largely in part to a huge number of drops from his supporting cast.

Jordan Rodgers

QB - Vanderbilt - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 202      Vertical: -
Age: 24      Broad: -
Birthdate: 08/30/88      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

Yes he is Aaron Rodgers brother, no he isn't Aaron Rodgers. Jordan Rodgers is a fairly mobile quarterback who tries to buy more time for a play to develop while rolling out and, if that fails, running with the ball. I wouldn't call Rodgers speedy but he gets the job done much better than most quarterbacks. When he first came to Vanderbilt Rodgers' accuracy and decision-making was very questionable. Since then he has significantly improved both. That being said Rodgers has a lot of work to do in order to ever see a regular season NFL game. Many times Rodgers will stand flat-footed in the pocket; this reduces his reaction time when being chased by defenders. This also reduces the control and power he can put into any given throw. While his mobility is decent, as I mentioned, I believe he both depends on it too much and thinks he is better at rushing than he actually is. This leads to several minimal gains when he could have passed for more yards instead. Furthermore, measuring in at 6'-1" height is going to be an issue. It doesn't help that coupled with his height he has an extremely low ball release which leads to a lot of passes being batted down.

Collin Klein

QB - Kansas State - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 226      Vertical: 29"
Age: 23      Broad: 111"
Birthdate: 09/19/89      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.78      Shuttle: 4.40

Klein is a unique prospect. His raw athleticism is unquestionable and his leadership ability is bar none. Klein however doesn't play the quarterback position in the traditional manner. Klein will run the ball as much as he will pass it, making him almost a quarterback-running back hybrid. When Klein does pass he is pretty accurate on short to mid-range passes. He has a great ability to read defenses at the line of scrimmage, audible and then take advantage of the weaknesses he sees. When he runs Klein is very quick for a player of his frame. Most tall, lanky quarterbacks aren't particularly fast but Klein is. Klein's arm strength is decent but not amazing. Deep throws don't have much velocity on them and aren't usually accurate. Klein seems all too willing to tuck the ball and run rather than buying time for his receivers.

Alex Carder

QB - Western Michigan - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 221      Vertical: 33"
Age: 23      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 10/22/89      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.92      Shuttle: 4.32

Carder has decent arm strength that he couples with very good accuracy to keep the chains moving. A big selling point of Carder's is that he has played in a pro-style offense which makes him more ready than most quarterback prospects upon entering the NFL. Carder has some mobility to him so he is not a complete statue in the pocket and opposing defenses must respect that mobility. Carder does have some problems with his decision making and his ability to read defenses. He will often make ill-advised throws into double or triple coverage or will not expect (or see) a defender lurking near his intended target. I can see him as a long term project or back-up.

Brad Sorensen

QB - Southern Utah State - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 229      Vertical: -
Age: -      Broad: -
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

Sorensen took the long route to a possible NFL draft spot, first attending a JUCO before Southern Utah State brought him into the fold. Sorensen is a tall quarterback that stands 6'-5". He stands tall in the pocket and isn't easily flustered in the pocket. If the pressure is too great he will even tuck the ball and run despite not being a burner he isn't a statue either. Sorensen has good arm strength and can hit receivers and any deep route. Sorensen does however have accuracy issues which stem from poor mechanics, specifically lifting his back leg when he throws. When Sorensen keeps his back leg planted his accuracy improves substantially. keeps his back leg planted his accuracy improves substantially.

RUNNING BACKS

Eddie Lacy

RB – Alabama – Junior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 231      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 01/01/91      3 Cone: 7.14
40-Yard Dash: 4.57      Shuttle: 4.44

Lacy is a rare blend of a power ball and an elusive, one-cut back. Lacy will try to run by you but if he can't then he will try to run through or over you. Lacy has excellent vision and can cut on a dime. When he sees a whole or opening then he attacks it immediately. Lacy has no problem with contact and will lower his shoulder to gain extra yardage. He has amazing balance and the great knack for always falling forward. Lacy also has the ability to catch the ball out of the backfield and is a decent pass blocker. Lacy is just an electric player who makes you believe that he could score on any play; he is very exciting and should make a great addition to any team.

Giovani Bernard

RB –North Carolina - Sophomore

Height: 5'-8"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 202      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 11/22/91      3 Cone: 6.91
40-Yard Dash: 4.53      Shuttle: 4.12

Bernard has the talent needed to be the first running back off the board in the 2013 Bernard is a patient runner who will wait for holes to develop, once those holes appear Bernard rockets through them. He also has the speed to take the play outside for a gain if no hole appears. Bernard has great open field vision which allows him to gain more yards and nearly every play that gets past the line of scrimmage. Bernard can catch the ball out of the backfield making him additionally valuable to any potential team. On top of that he can also effectively pass block which could potentially allow him to see the field pretty quickly. The cherry on top is that Bernard is a very effective kick/punt returner as well. One question mark however is that Bernard tore his ACL in 2010 which might give some pause, however, he has performed incredibly since that injury. Bernard is not a power back and appears to come down pretty easily. At times Bernard will start a game cold and takes a couple series' to warm up to the flow of the game.

Cierre Wood

RB – Notre Dame -Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 16
Weight: 213      Vertical: 37.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 124"
Birthdate: 02/21/91      3 Cone: 6.81
40-Yard Dash: 4.56      Shuttle: 4.25

Cierre Wood is probably one of the best all-purpose backs in this draft class. Wood is an elusive runner who has excellent vision. He is very patient and constantly looking for cutback lanes which he is very good at utilizing. Wood has great lateral movement as well as superior balance making him an extremely difficult target to take down for any defender. If need be Wood will lower his head to get the hard yards as well. He is a decent pass catcher out of the backfield and is a great open field runner. Wood does have some question marks, first he was suspended by Notre Dame for the first two games of the season for "violating team rules". This is always a concern and something NFL teams will want to investigate. Second, Wood lost a good portion of his starting time this year to his Notre Dame teammate Theo Riddick which will undoubtedly have a lot of NFL teams questioning why, is it due to his work ethic, is it due to his durability or could it be due to personality issues? These are all questions teams will ask and if they don't get sufficient answers to these questions Wood could see his draft stock fall. All things being equal Wood is the kind of running back a lot of teams are looking for.

Le'Veon Bell

RB – Michigan State – Junior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 24
Weight: 230      Vertical: 31.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 02/18/92      3 Cone: 6.75
40-Yard Dash: 4.60      Shuttle: 4.24

Bell is one of the prospects I'm very excited about. Bell is an exceptional talent and could be something very special if he is given a chance at the next level. Bell is a patient runner who will wait for holes and for plays to develop. He has exceptional vision both behind the line and in the open field. Bell can be a punishing back who isn't afraid of contact and lowering his shoulder to greet a defender. His legs never stop pushing to gain those extra yards and his balance is an asset he uses to his advantage to gain extra yards. While not particularly elusive he does have an open field spin move that he times wonderfully and many defenders bite on. His pass blocking is also very good, sticking with his blocks, never getting over powered and has the ability to pick up rushers on the opposite side of the line if needed. Bell has no problem picking up the blitz and protecting his quarterback. He can also catch the ball out of the backfield and has decent hands. While Bell is not what one would describe as speedy he does have very good speed for a man his size. There are rumors that Bell has some issues with his weight which he needs to stay on top of if he wants to have a productive career. While I have him ranked high it should be noted I don't think he will be drafted high. I do believe however that whoever does draft him is getting a steal!

Kenjon Barner

RB – Oregon – Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 196      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 04/28/89      3 Cone: 6.87
40-Yard Dash: 4.47      Shuttle: 4.20

Barner just finds a way to get yards, it's that simple. When running the ball Barner is very patient and will wait for the play and holes to develop. Once a hole opens Barner is through it in less than a blink of an eye. He's extremely fast and decisive which allows him to be at the second level extremely quick. He uses his substantial speed to allow plays to develop as he stretches the defense laterally. If no holes develop during that process he is still quick enough to turn the corner and pick up yards anyways. Barner has a low center of gravity that can make it hard to bring him down if he isn't hit square on. Barner has great vision and is very elusive in the open field, slicing, cutting and dancing his way through the defense. He also is very effective catching the ball out of the backfield and uses the same moves in the open field mentioned earlier, to rack up the yards after catch. Barner does have a problem getting stood up which nullifies his substantial skill set. Once he is stood up his progress stops immediately and his legs stop moving.

Miguel Maysonet

RB – Stony Brook – Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 209      Vertical: 31"
Age: 23      Broad: 107"
Birthdate: 12/13/89      3 Cone: 7.21
40-Yard Dash: 4.62      Shuttle: 4.43

Maysonet is one of my favorite small school prospects. He has a low center of gravity that makes it nearly impossible to bring him down if you tackle him above the waist to try to bring him down with arms tackles. Maysonet is one of the better cutting/slashing backs in this draft, he is able to plant on a dime and change direction in a flash. he is the definition of a big play back with an energy to him that makes it seem as if he could break almost any play wide open. Reportedly his work ethic and character are through the roof as well. That being said his speed is good but not in the burner range and he isn't usually kept in during passing downs.

Johnathan Franklin

RB – UCLA – Senior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 205      Vertical: 31.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 10/23/89      3 Cone: 6.89
40-Yard Dash: 4.49      Shuttle: 4.21

Franklin is a special player who is flat out exciting to watch. Franklin is extremely fast and shoots through holes like a bullet, many times surprising the defenders at the second level with how quickly he is upon them. He slips tackles with ease and keeps his legs chugging even when he is tackled, always gaining additional yards as he is going down. Franklin seems to see holes open and close a move or two before the one he is currently making. He is able to cut a run on a dime to take advantage of holes as the open outside of his direct path. Franklin is very patient waits for his blockers to set up before taking advantage of them. He catches the ball out of the backfield with amazing ease and always seems to make big things happen when the ball is in his hands. The only question is how much of his success is due to his offensive line and how much of it is his alone.

Marcus Lattimore

RB – South Carolina – Junior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 24
Weight: 221      Vertical: 32"
Age: 23      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 10/29/89      3 Cone: 6.85
40-Yard Dash: 4.56      Shuttle: 4.13

Lattimore is a very patient runner who will wait for holes to develop and will then shoot through them at a moment's notice. Lattimore has great vision both behind the line and in the open field. He uses this vision to make quick cuts and continue moving upfield. Lattimore squeezes through even the smallest cracks provided to him in order to continue the play. Lattimore catches the ball out of the backfield very well and can also pass block decently. Lattimore's speed isn't "elite" but it is decent. Back to back seasons which have been cut short by serious injuries does create a huge problem for his draft stock.

Knile Davis

RB – Arkansas - Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 31
Weight: 227      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: 10/05/91      3 Cone: 6.96
40-Yard Dash: 4.37      Shuttle: 4.38

Knile Davis has all the physical tools needed to be successful in the NFL. He is 6'-0" and 225 pounds which would lead you to believe he is a power back, and he has every opportunity to be such a back, but his running style is such that he tries to outmaneuver defenders rather than overpower them. Davis has above average vision and will wait for holes to develop. For a guy his size he has decent cutting ability and has good acceleration. Davis is also a decent pass catcher out of the backfield. However, Davis more often than not will try to break runs to the outside, something that he is not particularly well equipped to do. He has also had some fumbling issues from time to time which is a concern. While he broke his ankle in his senior year I don't consider this something that should negatively affect his draft stock since it was a break and not a muscle, tendon or ligament issue.

Theo Riddick

RB – Notre Dame – Senior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 201      Vertical: 32"
Age: 21      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 05/04/91      3 Cone: 6.99
40-Yard Dash: 4.68      Shuttle: 4.40

Riddick is likely fall some due the fact he had to split time with Wood in the Notre Dame backfield but Riddick's skills are such that this will allow him to be a value pick for some lucky team. Riddick isn't a track star and won't run the fastest 40 time in this class but what he can do is get the hard yards. He never, and I mean never, stops churning his legs. Riddick fights and fights for ever inch. Beyond just pushing hard for yard he has absolutely excellent balance so if players hit him and don't wrap up he can recover and continue moving downfield. An added aspect to Riddick's game is his pass catching ability, having been a converted wide receiver he has very good hands and is a constant threat in the passing game. As mentioned earlier, his speed could cause some teams to pass on him as they look for a running back with elite speed.

Onterio McCalebb

RB – Auburn – Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 10
Weight: 168      Vertical: 34"
Age: 23      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: 08/10/89      3 Cone: 7.02
40-Yard Dash: 4.34      Shuttle: 4.32

Speed, pure unadulterated speed. That's about the bottom line on Onterio McCalebb. McCalebb's speed is evident and undeniable from just watching a player or two by the Auburn running back. However, McCalebb maximizes his speed by the addition of having great vision. He is able to find small creases or holes and change direction to exploit them or turn on the rockets to shoot right through them. McCalebb also has very good hands and is a great receiver out of the backfield. Finally, his special teams play is something that will allow him to get immediate playing time in the NFL. His return skills are excellent and this might just allow him to stick at the next level. The big concern with McCalebb is his weight, he is very undersized, so much so that despite his speed many teams will pass on him until later in the draft. The most I've seen him weigh before the Combine is 175 pounds. If he can put on around 15 pounds and with his pass catching ability he may be able to see some time as a slot receiver.

Andre Ellington

RB – Clemson – Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 199      Vertical: 34"
Age: 24      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 02/03/89      3 Cone: 6.97
40-Yard Dash: 4.52      Shuttle: 4.15

Ellington hits his holes hard and with purpose. He tries to outrun defenders and while this may work in college that tactic won't be viable in the NFL where everyone is fast. Ellington doesn't work too hard on trying to elude defenders and his vision at the line is nothing special. While he remained in on passing downs at Clemson he didn't pass block very effectively which will be an issue in the NFL.

Mike Gillislee

RB – Florida – Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 208      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 11/01/90      3 Cone: 7.12
40-Yard Dash: 4.48      Shuttle: 4.40

Gillislee is a speedy runner who hits his holes hard. Once a hole opens up there is almost no delay before Gillislee hits it with a head of steam. Gillislee is a decent pass blocker who can pick up blocks on incoming defenders. He has been used a fair amount of times catching the ball out of the backfield with good results. That sadly is pretty much where Gillislee's game ends. In order for Gillislee to hit a hole it must be fully formed, otherwise Gillislee tends to either dance around or run full bore into his lineman or the pile-up. Gillislee appears to me to be very much a product of his offensive line, if he goes to a team with anything less than a superior offensive line he will struggle.

D.J. Harper

RB – Boise State -Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 229      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 09/21/89      3 Cone: 6.89
40-Yard Dash: 4.55      Shuttle: 4.26

Harper is one of the most well rounded prospects you'll find in this draft. Harper has amazing burst through holes which allows him to hit the second level extremely quickly. This combined with his elite vision and excellent patience allows him to almost always gain yardage. Once in the second level Harper has decent wiggle to his game with some decent lateral movement. What Harper does well is slip tackles while having superior balance so that he doesn't come down easy. Harper is a good pass blocker and has very good hands to catch passes out of the backfield. What will concern teams is the fact that Harper has had two severe ACL injuries. These injuries have noticeably affected his performance on the field. While he is still an amazing talent this degradation will worry NFL teams.

Montee Ball

RB - Wisconsin – Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 214      Vertical: 32"
Age: 22      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 12/05/90      3 Cone: 6.88
40-Yard Dash: 4.66      Shuttle: 4.40

Ball is a solid downhill rusher who will not be brought down by first contact and has excellent balance. He is a patient runner who will let the game unfold before him. Great pass blocker who stays with his blocks until the ball is away. Ball doesn't possess high-end speed which may cause him to drop some in the draft. Also, his extensive use in college may worry a lot of teams that are looking for longevity in a back they draft.

Robbie Rouse

RB - Fresno State - Senior

Height: 5'-6"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 190      Vertical: 34"
Age: 22      Broad: 114"
Birthdate: 02/05/91      3 Cone: 6.97
40-Yard Dash: 4.80      Shuttle: 4.25

Rouse is a fun player to watch, he's versatile, he's tough and boy golly he is elusive. Rouse has a quick burst through holes and once he hits the second level, that's when the fun begins. Rouse has a great wiggle to his game and can plant, cut and slash while picking up yards by the bucketful. Rouse has great vision and can make a play based on what he sees and senses when he combines it with his elusiveness. He catches the ball well out of the backfield and can make defenders look stupid when they try to tackle him. From what I can tell Rouse's speed is slightly above average but he isn't a track star. He will need to work on ball security some and definitely needs to focus on improving his pass blocking. As a rookie any hint that your pass blocking is weak and you won't see the field for a long time. Rouse's pass blocking isn't "weak" per se but it is questionable at times.

Zac Stacy

RB - Vanderbilt - Senior

Height: 5'-8"      Bench Press: 27
Weight: 216      Vertical: 33"
Age: 22      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 04/09/91      3 Cone: 6.70
40-Yard Dash: 4.55      Shuttle: 4.17

Vanderbilt's all-time leading rusher, Stacy has a very unique skill set that should transfer very well at the next level. Stacy has amazing vision and patience when running the ball. Stacy is very good at using his blockers and will alternate speeds in order to help set those blockers up. Even when defenders hit Stacy they find him hard to take down at first contact and they find they must fully wrap him up to bring him down. Where most runners will keep running towards the sideline in hopes that they can break the run upfield, only to run out of room and be forced out of bounds, Stacy is amazing at cutting runs between the tackles and gaining yards by the bushel. Stacy is also very good at catching the ball out of the backfield and pass blocking. He is able to effectively set up screens and rack up yards after the catch. One wrinkle in Stacy's game is his ability to run the wildcat with great effectiveness. Stacy doesn't simply rush every time he runs the wildcat, Stacy is also effective at passing in the wildcat also having thrown for a touchdown in his career.

Kerwynn Williams

RB - Utah State - Senior

Height: 5'-8"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 195      Vertical: 35"
Age: 21      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 06/09/91      3 Cone: 7.15
40-Yard Dash: 4.48      Shuttle: 4.15

Williams is a very interesting prospect and could potentially be one of the more exciting players in this year's class provided he goes to the right kind of team. Before breaking down his game let me say that I think Williams would be what you would get if you took MJD's, Sproles' and Jaquizz Rodgers' DNA and mixed them all together. Put another way, Williams is a small, low center of gravity back who can find and shoot through small holes and is a VERY dangerous back catching the ball out of the backfield. Williams has very good vision and can change direction effortlessly. At 5'-8" and 190 pounds he isn't very big but the backs I mentioned have all found success in the NFL due to their unique skill set and I have every reason to believe Williams' skill set will allow him to join that group in their success. Williams' biggest selling point will be his pass catching ability as he has amazing hands and is very dangerous in the open field due to his amazing high end speed. Williams is a scorcher who can simply put, haul ass. Size and questions on where he fits on a team might make his draft position slide.

Stepfan Taylor

RB - Stanford - Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 214      Vertical: 30
Age: 21      Broad: 110
Birthdate: 06/09/91      3 Cone: 7.13
40-Yard Dash: 4.76      Shuttle: 4.50

Taylor is a very versatile back but isn't overly speedy. Taylor has great vision and attacks holes as they appear. He has great pass catching ability and can use his vision to gain yards in space. A big selling point on Taylor will be his ability to pass block which can only serve to elevate his draft stock.

George Winn

RB - Michigan State - Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 218      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 11/10/90      3 Cone: 7.13
40-Yard Dash: 4.75      Shuttle: 4.33

Winn is the kind of back who you point in a direction and just watch him get the yards. He keeps his legs driving until the whistle and will drive the pile forward. Winn has a great knack for keeping his shoulders perpendicular which makes him very difficult to bring down. He also has great vision and can slide laterally to take advantage of holes as they appear. He is a decent pass catcher and is also decent at pass-blocking. Winn isn't very speedy and lacks a break-away speed to outrun defenders.

Joseph Randle

RB - Oklahoma State University - Junior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 13
Weight: 204      Vertical: 35"
Age: 21      Broad: 123"
Birthdate: 12/29/91      3 Cone: 7.01
40-Yard Dash: 4.52      Shuttle: 4.23

Randle is a very patient runner with great vision. Randle has decent top end speed which he uses in the open field to extend a play. He can catch passes out of the backfield and even lines up as a receiver many times. His pass blocking skills are very good with the ability to slide across the line to pick up rushers. He is rarely driven back when picking up the blitz. Randle is a strong runner who can at times deliver punishment to a defender attempting to tackle him. He is not easy to bring down and will usually shed the first hit. Randle is very much a straight line runner who isn't particularly elusive or shift. Randle does have some apprehensiveness to his game and doesn't hit the holes created for him as fast as he should which many times leads to zero or negative yards. While patience is good when trying to set up blocks down field, apprehensiveness behind the line is a problem.

Christine Michael

RB - Texas A&M - Senior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 27
Weight: 220      Vertical: 43"
Age: 22      Broad: 125"
Birthdate: 11/09/90      3 Cone: 6.69
40-Yard Dash: 4.54      Shuttle: 4.02

Michael is a back with amazing potential but has had a college career that will not accurately reflect that potential. Micheal is a big back who, despite his size, has great speed and movement. Michael is very patient and will wait for holes to develop and, even if those holes are small, will rocket through them. He has great cutting ability and can change direction instantly. Michael also has developed a nifty spin move that tends to work more often than not. Despite all of this potential his college career has been plagued by injuries, character issues and unfulfilled promise. Michael had two of his seasons ended pre-maturely by injuries. He was also suspended for a game by his team for unspecified issues which is sure to be a question on the lips of every NFL team who has interest in him. When he was finally able to play a full season in his senior year he was given a reduced play count. Despite his potential it may be too much to ask for some teams to take a chance on him.

Dennis Johnson

RB - Arkansas – Senior

Height: 5'-7"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 196      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: -      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.13
40-Yard Dash: 4.48      Shuttle: 4.53

Johnson is a well-rounded back, he does everything very well. He is a great runner with superior visions which allows him to extend his runs beyond what many backs would be able to do. He has both elusiveness and power to his game so if he can avoid a defender he will have no problem lowering his should and making contact. Johnson also catches the ball very well out of the backfield and has great hands, dropping very few passes. As a passing down back it is important for him to be able to pass block and Johnson is very good at this aspect of his game. He slides around the backfield to pick up the rush where it is needed most. Johnson is also a very good kick returner which just adds to his versatility and makes it more likely he will get to see the field sooner rather than later. Johnson has had some history of injuries so this is will worry a few teams and will likely drop his draft stock some.

Cameron Marshall

RB - Arizona State University - Senior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 211      Vertical: 36.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 10/14/91      3 Cone: 7.06
40-Yard Dash: 4.54      Shuttle: 4.38

Marshall is a larger back who runs well behind his pads. Marshall is a very physical back who won't avoid contact, as such he isn't easily brought down. He will slip arm tackles and will simply mow down tacklers who don't hit him straight on. Marshall is an above average pass catcher with soft hands. His catching ability coupled with his size will allow him to stay on the field as a three down back. I'm not overly impressed with his speed as I feel there are a great number of backs in this class that are faster.

Latavius Murray

RB - University of Central Florida - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 222      Vertical: 36"
Age: -      Broad: 124"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.81
40-Yard Dash: 4.38      Shuttle: 4.36

Murray is a big running back, measuring in at 6'-3", a giant by running back standards, but has some good skills. He is a straight-line, downhill runner who you can point towards the end zone and watch him go to work. Murray is stronger than most defenders who attempt to tackle him and unless they hit him low, straight on and with perfect form then he will either shed their tackle or run them over. He has a nose for sniffing out holes, or even creases, which he exploits. Murray has a quick burst to effectively take advantage of any weaknesses in the defense. He is a great pass catching back who the offense can keep in on passing downs. His pass blocking is above average as well which makes him an even bigger asset. On the downside Murray's height will work against him as 6'-3" is well above the normal size for a running back which will allow defenders to get leverage when hitting him. This has already been show as Murray does get stood up more than usual. Furthermore, Murray isn't an overly fast running back which will further damage his stock. Finally, he has dealt with some injuries in his college career which again dings his worth to an NFL team.

Mike James

RB - University of Miami - Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 28
Weight: 222      Vertical: 35"
Age: -      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.93
40-Yard Dash: 4.53      Shuttle: 4.62

James is a running back which I feel will see his draft improve the closer we get to the draft. James isn't the most speedy back but his game is such that he moves the ball. He has great vision and bursts through holes with no hesitation. James also is patient and sets up his blocks which extends his runs. One of James' biggest selling point his his pass catching ability. James is an excellent receiver which allows him to stay in on pass plays. James doesn't have breakaway speed so that might cause him to fall somewhat but overall James is a complete package of a back and could be an interesting selection for a team.

Chris Thompson

RB - Florida State University - Senior

Height: 5'-8"      Bench Press:
Weight: 187      Vertical: 35"
Age: 22      Broad: -
Birthdate: 10/20/90      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

Thompson is fighting an uphill battle to get drafted, not because he isn't talented but due to things outside of his control. First, his skills are excellent. He has great vision as well as the speed to take advantage of even the smallest of holes. Thompson has the unique ability to even take advantage of holes behind him with his sharp cutting ability. Thompson has good hands and tries hard to hold his own in pass protection. This short coming is due directly to one of the things Thompson has no control over, his size. Thompson measures in at only 5'-8" and 190 pounds. This size is clearly not what NFL teams are looking for in a workhorse back and will likely hurt his draft stock. He also suffered several injuries in his college career which, given his size, is worrying. The most severe among these were a broken back and a torn ACL, both of which are extremely scary.

Zach Line

RB - Southern Methodist University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 26
Weight: 230      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: -      Broad: 111"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.12
40-Yard Dash: 4.77      Shuttle: 4.40

In all honesty Line will likely not get a shot to play running back in the NFL. Carefully read that last sentence, he may not get a chance to play running back but I feel he will be given a shot to play in the NFL, just as a fullback. Line is a downhill, power runner who has racked up significant statistics in his college career. However his build and frame, not to mention his speed, do not translate into your typical running back role in the NFL. Line stands around 6'-1" and weighs in around 230 pounds. He is very tough to bring down and has every ability to get those tough yards. However he isn't what one would call fast, nor is he very elusive, traits that are highly sought after as an NFL running back. Furthermore, a bad foot injury in college will make it just that much tougher for Line.

Rex Burkhead

RB - Nebraska - Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 210      Vertical: 39"
Age: 22      Broad: 125"
Birthdate: 07/02/90      3 Cone: 6.85
40-Yard Dash: 4.73      Shuttle: 4.09

Burkhead is a versatile back who has a ton of heart. When rushing he keeps his legs moving to keep getting the yards. He also is very patient and allows holes to develop as opposed to just running where holes should be. Burkhead has all the skills needed to stay in on passing downs. He is a good pass blocker and able to pick up the blitz. Burkhead is also a very good pass catcher out of the back field, making him a legitimate three down back if relied upon. Unfortunately, Burkhead is not the fastest back in the draft. In fact, his top end speed is definitely lacking. This will make it hard for him to find the field very often.

Stephon Jefferson

RB - Nevada - Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 213      Vertical: 31"
Age: 21      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 08/14/91      3 Cone: 6.97
40-Yard Dash: 4.68      Shuttle: 4.44

Jefferson is your prototypical power runner. Jefferson will hit a hole and keep driving until a defender (or defenders) can bring him down. Jefferson isn't afraid of contact and will lower his shoulder to keep moving forward. Unfortunately Jefferson has a tendency to run much more straight-up than he should. This can lead to him losing much of the power he needs and defenders can stand him up. Jefferson is very much a straight line runner with very little elusiveness to his game and his vision appears to be very limited. Jefferson also needs to work on his pass blocking which needs a lot of work.

Ray Graham

RB - Pittsburgh - Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 199      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 09/18/90      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.80      Shuttle: 4.21

Graham was a running back with so much potential. I say was because I feel we are no longer seeing the Graham we once saw earlier in his college career. In 2011 Graham tore his ACL and since then his game has changed. To be entirely honest I don't think Graham is entirely (or properly) healed from this injury. Prior to the injury Graham had a lot better burst and top end speed, now he doesn't have the ability to pull away from defenders and is routinely tracked down. Graham does have good vision and that is absolutely a big part of his game. However, his patience is minimal as he will run into or past his blockers and won't wait for blocks to be set up for him. What Graham has going for him is his pass catching ability. He is an excellent receiver who is depended on to move the ball through the air and it is this that might find him a spot on an NFL roster.

WIDE RECEIVERS

Tavon Austin

WR - West Virginia - Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 174      Vertical: 32"
Age: 22      Broad: 120"
Birthdate: 03/15/91      3 Cone: 6.59
40-Yard Dash: 4.34      Shuttle: 4.01

Austin is an extremely unique player who can play wide receiver or running back. Austin is moved all over the field and fits in seamlessly. Austin has amazing visions, elusiveness and catching ability. His after the catch play is almost video game-like, it's that good! His size may be his only issue. Austin is only 5'-9" and 170 lbs. which will likely be a bit intimidating for NFL teams. Due to his size Austin translates best as a slot wide receiver or hybrid RB/WR in the mold of Darren Sproles or Jaquizz Rodgers. Austin has put up absolutely insane numbers in the 2012 season so teams will find a spot for him.

Cordarrelle Patterson

WR - Tennessee - Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 216      Vertical: 37"
Age: 22      Broad: 128"
Birthdate: 03/17/91      3 Cone: 7.19
40-Yard Dash: 4.42      Shuttle: 4.40

Patterson is just an amazing talent at wide receiver and has exploded onto the scene this year. He has above average hands that allow him to make most catches thrown to him. Patterson is great at fighting off defenders and catching the ball in traffic. He is dangerous after the catch due to his elusiveness, speed and how tough he is to bring down. Patterson is incredibly dynamic having run the ball out of the backfield and on end arounds, he is a very dangerous kickoff/punt returner and even at times works as the wildcat quarterback in some formations. Patterson does have a couple of issues, first and foremost being his mental lapses. Patterson has some just excruciating drops deep down field when he is wide open. At times it seems as if he requires coverage in order to make his catches. The second issue is the lack of tape on him since he has only played one season of Division I football. Some NFL teams may be wary of him on the possibility that he may be a one year wonder. This is not an opinion I share but the possibility does exist.

DeAndre Hopkins

WR - Clemson - Junior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 214      Vertical: 36"
Age: 20      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 06/06/92      3 Cone: 6.83
40-Yard Dash: 4.57      Shuttle: 4.50

Hopkins is the entire package, a well-rounded receiver who can line up in any position and make a big play. Hopkins' hands are amazing, he has the ability to catch the ball if it is even remotely within his reach with some of the strongest hands in this class. I cannot stress enough how great Hopkins' hands are. Hopkins is a great route runner who can plant and cut before many defenders can react. One thing that really stood out in the tape on him is how tough it is for defenders to take him down. Defenders will hit him but he constantly breaks tackles or pulls the defender forward with him as he goes down. Between his elusiveness and his ability to break tackles his yards after catch (YAC) this should make him very attractive to NFL teams. Hopkins is a very exciting prospect who should find his way into the starting lineup of an NFL team very quickly.

Keenan Allen

WR - California – Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 12
Weight: 206      Vertical: 35"
Age: 20      Broad: 114"
Birthdate: 04/27/92      3 Cone: 7.12
40-Yard Dash: 4.71      Shuttle: 4.28

Allen is a big, physical receiver who can use his size and strength to out-muscle defenders for receptions. Allen has decent vision after the catch and can gain a few extra yards by utilizing his blockers. Allen is tough to bring down for defenders and is strong enough to shed tacklers who don't wrap him up. Allen's height (6'-3") is a great asset and allows him to get above defenders. However, Allen appears to be very wary of going over the middle. When going over the middle Allen will regularly keep his arms close to his body, drop passes and lose focus of where the ball is due to what can only be explained as apprehension of contact. Going across the middle is by far Allen's least productive part of the field.

Da'Rick Rogers

WR - Tennessee Tech – Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 10
Weight: 217      Vertical: 39.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 132"
Birthdate: 06/18/91      3 Cone: 6.71
40-Yard Dash: 4.52      Shuttle: 4.06

Rogers is a gritty receiver who, despite his 6'-2" size, usually lines up in the slot. Rogers is absolutely fearless going across the middle and has no aversion to contact in the slightest. Rogers has great hands and can catch just about anything thrown even close to him. He has very good route running and takes barely any time to breakdown or make his cuts. Rogers fights for every yards and is tough to bring down more often than not. The primary concern is Rogers personal issues. Rogers reportedly has failed drug tests, had run-ins with coaches, a very public and highly publicized "meltdown" while at Tennessee and ultimately was suspended before transferring to Tennessee Tech. These question marks will ultimately be what causes Rogers stock to fall if it does at all. If a team takes a risk and can keep Rogers' personal issues in check then they could find themselves with an elite talent for a bargain.

Justin Hunter

WR - Tennessee - Junior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 200      Vertical: 40.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 138"
Birthdate: 05/20/91      3 Cone: 7.20
40-Yard Dash: 4.44      Shuttle: 4.33

A 6'-4" big receiver who has nice 4.4 speed. This speed allows him to get separation with ease and presents interesting opportunities down field. He uses his large body to box out defenders with ease. Has the vertical jumping ability and height to get higher than likely any defender who is assigned to cover him. His route tree appears to be a bit limited however. Hunter suffered an ACL tear in his left knee which sidelined him for roughly seven months. He appears to be healed completely but this will very likely play into any team's decisions regarding drafting him.

Terrance Williams

WR - Baylor - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 11
Weight: 208      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 09/18/89      3 Cone: 7.01
40-Yard Dash: 4.52      Shuttle: 4.32

Williams is a very fluid wide receiver who makes playing the position look effortless. In the open field Williams can change direction of a dime. He can weave his way through the defense following any catch. Williams is elusive and slippery enough so that he is rarely brought down by the first defender to hit him. Williams has great top end speed which he can use to pull away from defenders if given the chance.

Williams is also a willing blocker and is at least average at doing so, locking up with his defender and giving decent effort. Williams does have a bad habit of making catches against his body which is poor form and frowned upon in the NFL. He could also use some work on his route running which isn't the best around.

Stedman Bailey

WR - West Virginia - Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 11
Weight: 193      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 11/11/90      3 Cone: 6.81
40-Yard Dash: 4.52      Shuttle: 4.09

If Bailey was on any other team he'd be the first wide receiver drafted from his school but with Tavon Austin on West Virginia's squad Bailey will be the second West Virginia receiver to come off the board in the first few rounds. Bailey is a fluid route runner who always seems to find ways to get open. Against zone defenses Bailey finds the weak spot and settles in, against man defenses Bailey either jukes out or scorches his defender. Bailey is very physical for a player his size and is able to discard press coverage with ease. Bailey has amazing hands and rarely drops a pass. He also has amazing focus that allows him to catch the ball even in dense traffic. His vision in the open field is exceptional and he always seems to find a way to get several yards after the catch. Bailey's status as a finalist for the Biletnikoff Award should tell you everything you need to know about his skill in the wide receiver position. Bailey is only 5'-10" so he will likely be a slot receiver in the NFL.

Robert Woods

WR - USC - Junior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 201      Vertical: 33.5
Age: 21      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 04/10/92      3 Cone: 6.84
40-Yard Dash: 4.51      Shuttle: 4.38

Big play maker who has put up big numbers at USC. Woods reads defenses very well before the snap and reacts accordingly. In zone coverage Woods finds the soft spot and settles in, in man coverage Woods takes great angles to provide his quarterback the largest target possible and fights very well for position while the ball is in the air. Has great great hands, catches the ball away from his body and looks the ball in, all great attributes for any receiver. Appears comfortable at any of the wide receiver positions and presents great versatility. Woods does however seem to go down very regularly at first contact and isn't very good at fighting for extra yards.

Quinton Patton

WR - Louisiana Tech - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 8
Weight: 204      Vertical: 33
Age: 22      Broad: 118
Birthdate: 08/09/90      3 Cone: 6.91
40-Yard Dash: 4.53      Shuttle: 4.01

Pattson is the kind of "X" receiver NFL teams dream about. He has very good hands and just makes things happen. Pattson runs great routes and always finds a way to evade or elude his defender and create space to get him open. He has great body control and focus which allows him to make catches while falling or to catch floaters over his shoulder. After the catch Pattson has a ton of moves which allow him to elude would tacklers and continue to move up field. While Pattson looks very quick in game film he reportedly isn't the most speedy receiver in the class and isn't what some would define as a "burner".

Markus Wheaton

WR - Oregon State University - Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 189      Vertical: 37"
Age: 22      Broad: 120"
Birthdate: 02/07/91      3 Cone: 6.80
40-Yard Dash: 4.45      Shuttle: 4.02

Wheaton is an extremely sure-handed receiver who very rarely drops any pass even close to him. Wheaton has great concentration able to track the ball through traffic or over his shoulder. He is very fast and can use his speed to run right by his defender. Wheaton is also very good at fighting off any press coverage he might encounter and fights very well for position when he is closely defended. Wheaton isn't overly effective at shedding tacklers and tends to go down more often than not after first contact. He also needs to work on his blocking as it is the weakest part of his game.

Ace Sanders

WR - South Carolina - Junior

Height: 5'-7"      Bench Press: 7
Weight: 173      Vertical: 32"
Age: -      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.81
40-Yard Dash: 4.58      Shuttle: 4.37

Sanders is a high octane receiver that is a prototypical slot receiver. Sanders has decent hands and can make a wide variety of catches anywhere on the field. He is a great route runner who utilizes his elite speed to constantly get open and separate from defenders. After the catch Sanders uses his high end speed and elusiveness to significantly extend any play he is a part of. He is an excellent kick returner which will allow him to get some immediate playing time in the NFL. Sanders needs to work on how he catches the ball as he will, at times, catch the ball against his body which leads to some juggling or even drops.

Aaron Mellette

WR - Elon - Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 9
Weight: 217      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 123"
Birthdate: 12/28/89      3 Cone: 7.11
40-Yard Dash: 4.54      Shuttle: 4.41

Mellette is one of those small school prospects that not many people have heard of but come around the third or fourth round his name is going to start being mentioned a lot. Mellette is a high character leader on his team with a great work ethic and a drive to show doubters that he belongs with to be taken serious against anyone he is matched up against. Mellette is 6'-4" with a solid frame on him, he leverages his size to go up and get any ball thrown even close to him. Mellette has very good hands and catches the ball away from his body. Mellette is very difficult to bring down due to his large size and he regularly slips out of tackles or drags defenders with him. Mellette has great concentration which allows him to catch the ball in traffic. He isn't the fastest player in this draft class but he has adequate speed. Mellette is from the small school of Elon and hasn't faced a whole lot of top level competition which makes drafting him a risk. However with Brian Quick, a fellow small school standout receiver, being drafted in the first round last year it would be foolish to think another NFL team won't see the opportunity for a sneaky play in taking Mellette.

Conner Vernon

WR - Duke - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 5
Weight: 196      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 125"
Birthdate: 08/18/90      3 Cone: 6.93
40-Yard Dash: 4.68      Shuttle: 4.22

Vernon is a great prospect to watch, he is a flat out play maker. He has absolutely amazing hands and put simply, he just doesn't drop passes. Vernon is a good route runner who doesn't round off his routes. Also, though generally intangible, he has good football smarts, always making smart plays. Vernon is fearless as well, going across the middle and making the catch despite the knowledge he is going to take punishment. He also has very good concentration and can focus on the ball in traffic. Vernon is a good kick returner also which might earn and keep him a spot on an NFL roster if the receiving corps are deep on the team that drafts him. He will need to work on his blocking as he isn't overly good at doing so. Vernon may also need to add some weight to his frame, but not a lot.

Darrin Moore

WR - Texas Tech - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 13
Weight: 225      Vertical: 34"
Age: 23      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 01/20/90      3 Cone: 7.24
40-Yard Dash: 4.61      Shuttle: 4.20

Moore is a very large bodied wide receiver who will be a nightmare to defend. Standing at roughly 6'-4" Moore is an outside threat that can go up and get any pass over any defender, and I do mean ANY defender. He does a great job of catching the ball away from his body and has excellent hands. Moore has no problem going over the middle and catching the ball in traffic but does his best work on deep routes. He is a clear red-zone target out-muscling and out jumping any defender to get the score. Moore is a tough player to bring down and is almost never brought down on first contact. Moore tends to require some time to build up his speed but when there he's still fairly easy to catch. Moore did have some disciplinary issues at Texas Tech, having been arrested for drunken driving and subsequently being suspended from the team for that issue. This will certainly be something he has to address in his pro interview process.

Marquess Wilson

WR - Washington State University - Junior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 7
Weight: 183      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 20      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 09/14/92      3 Cone: 6.65
40-Yard Dash: 4.51      Shuttle: 4.33

Wilson is a tall but extremely smooth wide receiver. He has extraordinarily soft and strong hands, catching the ball away from his body with ease no matter where the ball seems to be. He runs very good routes that he is very good at selling and which routinely allow him to get open. Wilson is also very talented at moving the ball up field after the catch, eluding defenders and breaking tackles while gaining yards. Wilson isn't the prototypical size for a highly drafted wide receiver, due to his 6'-4" frame only having 185 pounds on it. I have concerns about how well he fights for the ball against defenders, many times he gets outfought for these passes which lead to incomplete passes more often than not. Wilson had a falling out with the coaching staff which resulted in a suspension and then him leaving the team. Plenty of question marks surround this situation with the coaching staff saying he was demoted, while Wilson claims both he and other teammates were being mentally or emotionally abused.

Tavarres King

WR - Georgia - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 11
Weight: 189      Vertical: 36.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 123"
Birthdate: 07/14/90      3 Cone: 6.91
40-Yard Dash: 4.47      Shuttle: 4.33

King had the unenviable task of taking over for AJ Green when he left for the NFL. While King is not on the level of Green, very few wide receivers are. King is a wide receiver with soft hands who is very consistent. He has excellent top end speed which allows him to outrun defenders for many deep strike passes. King will fight for balls that are contested, making him a great red zone asset. King moves very well after the catch, flowing through traffic while picking up additional yards. One concern is King's bad habit of disappearing in big, important games. NFL teams will expect consistency and a player who can step up to any challenge.

DeVonte Christopher

WR - Utah – Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 3
Weight: 192      Vertical: 29"
Age: 23      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 04/17/90      3 Cone: 7.25
40-Yard Dash: 4.55      Shuttle: 4.37

Christopher has the kind of skills which will make him a great possession receiver in the NFL. He runs crisp routes and doesn't round them off. Christopher also has excellent hands which has made him a favorite target in college. His pass catching technique is very good, catching the ball away from his body and not catching the ball against his body. Christopher has good skills working and fighting through press coverage. He does need to work on a bad habit he has which is leaving his feet unnecessarily. Christopher will sometimes jump when catching a ball at chest level, a habit which slows him down. Additionally, Christopher needs to work on his field awareness. At least once a game he will come up a yard or two short from the first down marker which can hurt his team.

Chris Harper

WR - Kansas State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 229      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 09/10/89      3 Cone: 6.89
40-Yard Dash: 4.55      Shuttle: 4.26

Harper is a receiver with a very solid build, one that reminds you immediately of Terrell Owens or Dez Bryant. Harper uses his body perfectly to fight off press coverage, fight for position while running his routes and boxing out or out-muscling defenders for the ball when he is thrown to. Harper has very good hands and body control, contorting himself to adjust to the ball and able to come down with the catch. After the catch Harper utilizes his big build to break tackles and push downfield. His build does seem to slow him down some so he isn't going to outrun everyone, all the time, but he isn't a slug either. Harper is relatively new to the position, only becoming a wide receiver in his freshman year, so he will require some work to come up to NFL expectations but he has all the physical tools to do so.

Chad Bumphis

WR - Mississippi State University - Senior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 196      Vertical: 34"
Age: 23      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 10/18/89      3 Cone: 6.87
40-Yard Dash: 4.55      Shuttle: 4.27

Bumphis is a wide receiver with good hands and amazing after the catch skills. Bumphis likely translates as a slot receiver at the next level due to his 5'-10" size. He is very speedy clocking 40 speeds in the high 4.3's but doesn't seem to have a lot of explosion off the line of scrimmage. However, after the catch Bumphis becomes a man possessed, making defenders miss routinely and turning on the jets to move the ball downfield. He was heavily depended on by the Mississippi State passing game and was able to deliver. He needs to work on his routes as he has a tendency to round off his routes. He was also arrested on New Years of 2012 and charged with being drunk in public and disorderly conduct. Due to this being on New Years some teams might give him a pass, that remains to be seen. Bumphis fractured his collarbone in 2010 but this kind of injury does not tend to affect player performance after it has healed.

Jasper Collins

WR - Mount Union - Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 12
Weight: 180      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: 11/28/91      3 Cone: 6.85
40-Yard Dash: 4.47      Shuttle: 4.07

Collins is an incredibly smooth athlete who makes playing the game look effortless. He has great hands which he uses to pull down just about every pass thrown to him. Collins' route running is very good as well, using shifts in speed to throw defenders off. He also has decent speed which allows him a slight advantage over most defenders. The big knock on Collins is going to be the level of competition he has played against. NFL teams will question if he can do what he has done thus far against elite talent at the next level.

Brandon Kaufman

WR - Eastern Washington - Junior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 9
Weight: 216      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 10/26/90      3 Cone: 7.11
40-Yard Dash: 4.67      Shuttle: 4.44

Brandon Kaufman is a small school prospect that I think we will start to hear some buzz about on day two of the draft. Kaufman is a big bodied receiver who has no problem at all fighting through blanket coverage to make a catch. If a quarterback throws a ball up from grabs he can be certain Kaufman will likely come down with it. He uses his size (6'-5") to a supreme advantage, out jumping defenders and pulling down the ball at its highest point. He also uses his large frame to box out defenders as a basketball player would, Kaufman is a very good route runner and is good at getting open. Kaufman appears slower than expected on television so it will be interesting to see what kind of 40-yard dash speed he posts at the combine. Kaufman's tools and size alone however make him a very intriguing prospect.

Emory Blake

WR - Auburn - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 189      Vertical: 36.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 120"
Birthdate: 07/18/91      3 Cone: 7.00
40-Yard Dash: 4.62      Shuttle: 4.26

Blake is an extremely sure-handed receiver who a quarterback can throw the ball to with no worries that he may drop it. Blake has the kind of skills to become a security blanket for a young quarterback. He is going to be a great possession receiver in the NFL and this is going to be his biggest selling point. He is a smooth route runner and has above average cutting ability that throws defenders off. Blake does a great job of adjusting to balls thrown his way and has great body control to make the tough catches. On the downside Blake isn't overly speedy but possession receivers don't need overwhelming speed.

Aaron Dobson

WR - Marshall - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 16
Weight: 200      Vertical: 35"
Age: -      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.20
40-Yard Dash: 4.43      Shuttle: 4.29

Dobson is a physical wide receiver who can hold his own and then some with physical defenders. Dobson can go up and get a ball at its highest point and pull it down while boxing a defender out. Dobson is very quick off the line but has just average speed after his initial burst. Dobson will be a project for a team, make no mistake. However, his upside is such that several teams will be glad to take it on. Dobson needs to focus on his concentration and on the field focus. He loses focus on where he is in the field, will try to get up-field before he catches the ball and will bobble or "double catch" the ball. He has an uncanny ability to make route catches look difficult but also to make astounding catches look normal or easy.

Russell Shepard

WR - Louisiana State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"	Bench Press: 8
Weight: 196	Vertical: 38.5"
Age: 22	Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 09/17/90	3 Cone: 7.09
40-Yard Dash: 4.46	Shuttle: 4.37

Shepard has not been featured much in LSU's offense but this isn't due to his lack of abilities but due more to LSU being a run first team. Shepard is extremely talented having played quarterback, running back and wide receiver all within the past four years. A converted high school quarterback, Shepard has seen time lining up in the slot and at times as a running back. His skills are very reminiscent of Percy Harvin or Randall Cobb which will pique the interest of some teams to be sure. However, his limited touches will certainly work against him. Additionally, his suspension at the hands of the NCAA in connection to discussing an NCAA inquiry with another teammate involved in the same inquiry will raise some eyebrows. I can see Shepard being a late round pick for a team willing to take a shot on the possibility that he could turn out like Harvin or Cobb or just as easy he could go undrafted. It's all going to come down to how risk adverse teams are this year.

Dominique Croom

WR - University of Central Arkansas - Senior

Height: 6'-1"	Bench Press:
Weight: 193	Vertical:
Age: -	Broad:
Birthdate: -	3 Cone:
40-Yard Dash:	Shuttle:

Croom is a little known prospect that I could see going undrafted but ultimately finding a home on an NFL roster. Croom is very much a deep threat with his average catch going for roughly 12 yards and around one out of every nine catches being a touchdown. He has very good speed which allows him to simply outrun his defenders. One of his best-selling points is his body control, which is excellent. He can alter, adjust and contort his body to make even the most difficult catches. Finally, his hands are very good, he is able to catch nearly everything thrown to him. It's funny but he does almost everything Cordelle Patterson does, just on a much smaller stage. This leads to the big issue with Croom, which is his career has been at the University of Central Arkansas, which is an extremely small school, playing against less than elite competition. As with any small school talent he is going to have to get some attention and one way or another show he has what it takes to play on Sundays.

Kenny Stills

WR - Oklahoma University - Junior

Height: 6'-1"	Bench Press: 16
Weight: 194	Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 20	Broad: 124"
Birthdate: 04/22/92	3 Cone: 7.13
40-Yard Dash: 4.38	Shuttle: 4.13

Stills is a player with a ton of questions surrounding him. He has impressive statistics and has above average hands which immediately make you take some notice. Still catches the ball away from his body and has strong hands, allowing him to make catches that many other receivers would drop. His route running is also above average, allowing him to get open due to defender mistakes. However, Stills has some aspects to his game that make him seem non-physical in a very physical game. Stills is easily brought down at first contact, many times looking like he will go down willingly. Second, he shows next to no fight when a defender attempts to intercept the ball or break up the pass. Finally, Stills was arrested for driving under the influence which is certain to raise several questions during his pro interviews. All in all Stills will likely be drafted later in the draft and will fade into the background of whichever team takes him.

Marquise Goodwin

WR - Texas - Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 13
Weight: 183      Vertical: 42"
Age: 22      Broad: 132"
Birthdate: 11/19/90      3 Cone: 6.66
40-Yard Dash: 4.27      Shuttle: 4.09

Goodwin has a lot of raw talent but plenty of risks surround him. First there is absolutely zero doubt to his athletic ability, he was an Olympian at the 2012 games and has world class speed. Goodwin also has decent hands and great body control which allow him to make most catches. However, Goodwin's route running is very limited and will require a lot of work from any team who ends up selecting him. Additionally, he is very undersized, measuring in at 5'-9" and 180lbs. which will essentially limit him to playing the slot in the NFL and even then he'll be small.

Cobi Hamilton

WR - Arkansas - Senior

Height: -      Bench Press: -
Weight: -      Vertical: -
Age: 22      Broad: -
Birthdate: 11/13/90      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

Hamilton is a small speedy slot receiver trapped in big bodied wide receiver's body. Hamilton is 6'-3" and has a ton of speed as evidence of him being a former track star. He is great at finding ways to get open both in man coverage and in zone. After the catch Hamilton can be dangerous if he gets past initial contact. He has great vision that allows him to stretch a play and rack up the yards after catch. Hamilton thrives in the short range routes and this is where a lions share of his receptions come from. In these routes he gets a quick burst of the line and is a large target for his quarterback. When targeted in the short yardage routes he catches the ball away from his body and gains nice yardage. However, if the routes stretch to intermediate to deep route this is where the issues with his game start appear. In these routes Hamilton begins to catch the ball against his body which leads to a much greater frequency of drops. Hamilton must work on ball security after the catch. If hit immediately after catching the ball he has been known to fumble the ball.

Quentin Sims

WR - University of Tennessee at Martin - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 202      Vertical: 35"
Age: 22      Broad: 120"
Birthdate: 07/11/90      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

Sims is an interesting prospect, he transferred to a small school, after spending time at Georgia Tech, due to what is thought to be a lack of playing time. That kind of move is a rare one and might not be advisable to most but Sims has made it work. Sims has very good hands, catching the ball away from his body, and has abused defenders that are clearly no match for him. Since he was good enough to be rostered by Georgia Tech, NFL teams may think twice on passing on him. Sims doesn't appear to have high end speed and his route running needs some work. While route running can be worked on the lack of speed is a bit worrying.

Keenan Davis

WR - Iowa – Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 11
Weight: 215      Vertical: 29.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 107"
Birthdate: 01/30/91      3 Cone: 7.09
40-Yard Dash: 4.50      Shuttle: 4.31

Davis is a big receiver who is a good router and makes crisp cuts. After the catch he is a strong runner who doesn't come down easy and will often pull defenders with him as he fights for yardage. Unfortunately, that's about where Davis' game ends. He is simply not a good pass catcher and drops many passes thrown his way. He struggles to get separation when defended which leaves many of his targets contested. Davis isn't very physical and does appear to have some issues going across the middle, he seems to hear footsteps and will keep his arms close to him to defend himself.

Ryan Swope

WR - Texas A&M - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 16
Weight: 206      Vertical: 37"
Age: 22      Broad: 125"
Birthdate: 09/20/90      3 Cone: 6.76
40-Yard Dash: 4.34      Shuttle: 4.25

Swope is the kind of player you rarely see. First off, he is very difficult to "define". By that I mean he looks like he should play one position but he plays a different position than what one would expect. Swope looks like he would be more at home playing a defensive back position or even a Danny Woodhead-like running back role. However, Swope plays wide receiver, the slot specifically. The immediate desire of some is to compare him to Wes Welker but let me be clear, this is **NOT** a Wes Welker clone! In terms of a slot receiver Swope is about as stocky and bulky as they come. Swope has very good hands and runs good routes. He is used regularly for bubble screens and has some elusiveness to his game. On film Swope does not seem very speedy off of the line although his speed has been called deceptive by some. Swope needs to work on ball security as solid hits will sometimes jar the ball lose from his grasp.

Xavier Boyce

WR - Norfolk State - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 8
Weight: 220      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 123"
Birthdate: 08/17/90      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.58      Shuttle: 4.48

Boyce is a large receiver who if utilized correct could be a red zone threat. Boyce is not afraid of contact and will give up his body going over the middle to make the catch. Boyce keeps fighting for yards after the catch, dragging defenders for more yards. Unfortunately he does not have the best hands, at times dropping passes that he has both hands on. Ball security is also a concern for Boyce as defenders have swatted the ball out of his hands immediately following a catch or while he is moving up field. He also has character concerns after being kicked off of the Virginia Tech team due to charges of felony child endangerment.

TIGHT ENDS

Tyler Eifert

TE - Notre Dame - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 250      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 09/08/90      3 Cone: 6.92
40-Yard Dash: 4.72      Shuttle: 4.32

Big bodied, great hands, punishes defenders as he racks up the YAC. Can spread out like a WR and create dangerous mismatches for the offense. He is definitely a tight end in the "new" mold with an imposing 6'-6" 250lbs frame which compares in a similar manner to Rob Gronkowski or Kyle Rudolph but has the ability, as mentioned before, to spread out like a wide receiver like Aaron Hernandez or Rob Housler does. Eifert is an adequate blocker which may require him to be in a tight end rotation while an NFL team works on his blocking. In the end though, Eifert is an amazingly rare prospect at tight end.

Zach Ertz

TE - Stanford - Junior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 24
Weight: 249      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 111"
Birthdate: 11/10/90      3 Cone: 7.08
40-Yard Dash: 4.76      Shuttle: 4.47

Ertz is a very well rounded tight end who should be able to make opportunities for himself at the next level. Ertz has the ability to line up with his hand in the dirt or split out as an over-sized wide receiver. His ball catching skills are superb, catching the ball away from his body. Ertz has an uncanny ability to make the hard catches and is willing to put his body on the line to make the play. His route running is very good for a player his size and he even has the ability to create separation in some instances. Ertz is a decent blocker who sticks with his block until the whistle and doesn't appear overpowered or unbalanced very often. Sometimes Ertz loses concentration or focus which will at times lead to some drops.

Jordan Reed

TE - Florida - Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 16
Weight: 236      Vertical: 33"
Age: 22      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 01/01/91      3 Cone: 6.86
40-Yard Dash: 4.72      Shuttle: 4.25

Reed has amazing quickness for a player his size. He moves like an over-sized wide receiver. One of the few tight ends I've ever seen that has actual moves in the open field that defenders will actually bite on successfully. His pass catching skills are very good as is his route running. Reed is very tough and has no problem taking a hit after catching the ball. One area that Reed needs to work on is his blocking. Reed will engage a defender but is easily beat or he give up on the block very quickly.

Gavin Escobar

TE - San Diego State University - Junior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 12
Weight: 254      Vertical: 32"
Age: 22      Broad: 114"
Birthdate: 02/03/91      3 Cone: 7.07
40-Yard Dash: 4.84      Shuttle: 4.31

Escobar has all the tools to be a top level tight end in the NFL. His size is such that he is already physically imposing, standing 6'-6", but has enough room to add muscle and weight to truly make him dangerous. Escobar has excellent hands and isn't afraid of contact after the catch. Due to his size he is very difficult to bring down after the catch. Escobar is an adequate blocker but can be sloppy at time, allowing defenders to shed his blocks. He needs to work on his blocking technique to cut down these shed blocks. Escobar would also do well to work on his route running as this will be crucial at the next level.

Travis Kelce

TE - Cincinnati - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 255      Vertical: 37"
Age: 23      Broad: 124"
Birthdate: 11/05/89      3 Cone: 7.12
40-Yard Dash: 4.64      Shuttle: 4.33

Kelce is a great all-around package for a tight end. First and foremost he is an excellent blocker. He essentially nullifies any defender he hooks up with. He is very good at directing a defender away from the play or sealing the end to allow a runner to get to the outside. When running a route Kelce is a dominating presence who can catch the ball against any defender. He also has very good hands and will very rarely drop a pass thrown to him. For his size he also has decent speed with the ability to outrun defenders if needed.

Vance McDonald

TE - Rice - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 31
Weight: 260      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 06/13/90      3 Cone: 7.08
40-Yard Dash: 4.69      Shuttle: 4.53

McDonald is a tough prospect to scout due to how he was used at Rice. McDonald due to his size and body frame is clearly a tight end but Rice doesn't use tight ends in their offense, at least in the traditional way. In Rice's offense tight ends line up in the slot, standing up and never have their hand in the dirt. As such, everything we've ever seen from McDonald is essentially as a wide receiver. That being said I feel this might actually help McDonald as we can clearly see his pass catching ability. McDonald has great hands and is able to catch most everything thrown towards him. He also is very effective fighting for yards after the catch.

McDonald does need to work on his focus as sometime he will start running before catching the ball and will drop passes doing this. McDonald's blocking ability needs to be worked on as he will hesitate before engaging a defender and will not always stick with his blocks. Overall McDonald is a very interesting prospect based on how he was used at Rice.

Justice Cunningham

TE - South Carolina - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 264      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: -      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.12
40-Yard Dash: 4.59      Shuttle: 4.45

Cunningham is a great all-around tight end that will likely hear his name called day two or day three. Cunningham just does everything well. He is an excellent pass catcher who will catch balls in traffic and will hold onto the pass despite any punishment from defenders. Cunningham has great hands and very rarely drops passes thrown his way making him a great security blanket option for any quarterback. Cunningham is also a great blocker who sticks with his defender until the whistle. He is very good at positioning himself in such a way that he puts himself between the defender and the ball carrier. Cunningham is very flexible as well, lining up as a tight end, receiver and even as a fullback. Cunningham does need to work on engaging a defender when blocking as opposed to waiting for a defender to engage him. He also needs to work on driving his leg during a block. Overall Cunningham is an excellent prospect who has a bright future in the NFL.

Chris Gragg

TE - Arkansas - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 242      Vertical: 37.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 125"
Birthdate: 06/30/90      3 Cone: 7.08
40-Yard Dash: 4.50      Shuttle: 4.51

Gragg is a great all-around tight end that is going to be a great pick-up for any team. Gragg has good hands and makes nearly every catch thrown to him. He keeps driving down field after contact, extending the play after contact. Gragg is also a great blocker, sticking with his block until the whistle. If possible he will help by picking up a second block if needed or assisting a lineman with his block. He boxes out his assigned defender, putting himself between the defender and the ball. He isn't the fastest tight end in the class but he isn't slow by any means either.

Ryan Otten

TE - San Jose State - Senior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 245      Vertical: 33"
Age: 22      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 04/07/91      3 Cone: 7.50
40-Yard Dash: 4.69      Shuttle: 4.62

If you looked up the term "tight end" in the the dictionary then I'm pretty sure there would be a picture of Otten there. Otten has great hands and catches the ball away from his body. He has no problem with contact and will take punishment in order to make a catch. What really stands out is his exceptional blocking. Otten almost never gets pushed backwards. What he does that very few players at any position does is he will make his initial block but will then peel off and make additional blocks as the play moves down field. Otten was voted as captain of his team, as many know, a tight end as a captain is a rarity and shows just how much of a leader he is. There is very little that you can point to in terms of what Otten does wrong.

Levine Toilolo

TE - Stanford - Junior

Height: 6'-8"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 260      Vertical: 31"
Age: 21      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 07/30/91      3 Cone: 7.09
40-Yard Dash: 4.86      Shuttle: 4.57

The dude is 6'-8", 265 lbs., a power forward basketball player who has above average catching ability. Do I need to say much more? Well, I will anyways. Toilolo is a decent blocker who sticks with his blocks until the whistle. Toilolo isn't a burner but few tight ends are expected to be. He will need some coaching before getting on the field regularly. However, given the right team and scheme Toilolo could be a monster at the next level.

Mychal Rivera

TE - University of Tennessee - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 244      Vertical: 31"
Age: 22      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 09/08/90      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.78      Shuttle: 4.43

Rivera doesn't have your prototypical tight end size, measuring only 6-3" and 245 pounds. In reality Rivera looks very much like a large wide receiver. That being said he has above average hands which have earned him plenty of targets on a high powered passing offense. Rivera is tough to take down after the catch, appearing much larger than his actual build. Rivera is a willing blocker but he isn't overly effective. Many times Rivera will get driven backwards or will be controlled by the defender he is matched up against. Rivera's game reminds me very much of Aaron Hernandez.

Jack Doyle

TE - Western Kentucky University - Senior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 253      Vertical: 31"
Age: 23      Broad: 110"
Birthdate: 05/05/90      3 Cone: 6.99
40-Yard Dash: 4.91      Shuttle: 4.34

Doyle is a towering 6'-6" with very good speed for a tight end. He is able to either outrun the linebackers tasked with covering him or box out a smaller defensive back if the defense goes that route instead. He has very good hands and puts his body on the line for any throw. Beyond just being a pass catcher, Doyle is also an above average blocker. He sticks with his blocks and initiates contact. He keeps moving his legs after engaging and does a good job of steering his defender where he wants. Doyle will need to add some weight to his frame in the NFL as he is a bit undersized in terms of weight for an NFL tight end.

Jake Stoneburner

TE - Ohio State - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 245      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 08/25/89      3 Cone: 7.12
40-Yard Dash: 4.65      Shuttle: 4.27

Stoneburner is your prototypical pass-catching tight end and should be an interesting catch for whichever team takes him. He is 6'-5" and 245 pounds with exceptional hands, dropping very few passes thrown his way. Stoneburner is built like a very large wide receiver and he has decent speed to make that description even more viable. As for blocking, Stoneburner is above average but isn't elite per se. He blocks his target well enough but doesn't impose his will on the defender and will let his block go early at times. Stoneburner did have a legal issue leading into his senior year which resulted in the pulling of his scholarship for a period of time. The issue was due to him fleeing from police when he was caught urinating on the wall of a building. While it resulted in legal action most NFL team are more than likely to overlook this as a youthful indiscretion. If Stoneburner added a little weight to his frame he could really turn some heads at the next level based on the talent he has.

Dion Sims

TE - Michigan State - Junior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 262      Vertical: 35"
Age: 22      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 02/18/91      3 Cone: 7.36
40-Yard Dash: 4.75      Shuttle: 4.52

Sims is a blocker first and pass receiver second, make no mistakes. As I mentioned, Sims' best attribute is his blocking, he sticks with his block, isn't easily pushed around and due to his size and strength he at times able to push the defender around instead. A team drafting him isn't looking for the next Graham or Gronkowski, they are looking for a sixth lineman. Sure, when needed Sims can catch the ball but he isn't particularly great at doing so. He is lumbering receiver whose moves aren't going to fool anyone and his routes take a while to develop. It's rumored he runs around a 4.7 40-yards dash but he actually looks slower than that on film. Late in 2010 Sims received probation for his role in the theft of over $150,000 dollars worth of computers from the Detroit Public Schools. While not involved in the theft itself, Sims apparently helped these involved make connections needed to sell the stolen computers. NFL teams will likely take a poor view of this and may cause his stock to fall.

Michael Williams

TE - Alabama – Senior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 269      Vertical: 25.5"
Age: -      Broad: 97"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 8.10
40-Yard Dash: 5.16      Shuttle: 4.87

Williams is a big bodied tight end that measures in at 6'-6 and 270 pounds which puts him at (or near) the top of tight ends in the class in terms of size. Williams is fairly one dimensional in the fact that he isn't really a pass catcher. However, the one dimension he does have, his blocking, he is extremely good at. Williams does not wait for the defender to engage him, rather he engages the defender. He sticks with his block and doesn't give up. Williams rarely gets pushed backwards and due to his massive size and good strength he is more able to push around many of the defenders he faces. The lack of receiving skills lowers his draft stock but whichever team ends up drafting him is getting a great blocking tight end.

Joseph Fauria

TE - UCLA - Senior

Height: 6'-7"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 255      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 120"
Birthdate: 01/16/90      3 Cone: 7.49
40-Yard Dash: 4.72      Shuttle: 4.53

Fauria has good hands and is great at pulling down a pass in traffic. He is more than willing to put his body on the line for a catch, taking punishment after the catch or stretching out to get the completion. Very athletic player who has hurdled players several times. Fauria has a big frame which he uses to box out smaller defenders. A major issue with Fauria is his blocking which is sub-par at best. He is routinely driven back from the point of attack with a defender pushing him completely over at times. Many times defenders are able to easily shed Fauria's blocks and other times Fauria will simply not stick with a block. This is a huge red flag at the next level!

Kyle Juszczyk

TE - Harvard - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 24
Weight: 245      Vertical: 37"
Age: 23      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: 04/23/91      3 Cone: 6.93
40-Yard Dash: 4.71      Shuttle: 4.19

There is so much about Juszczyk that reminds one of Dallas Clark. He has the same size/body build, his game is nearly identical, hell, he even has the same jersey number! Juszczyk has very good hands and has been depended on by Harvard to be one of their top offensive producers. He is a very willing blocker and, for his size, is quite good. He engages his defender, holds his ground and sticks with his block. It will be hard for Juszczyk to catch on at the next level at tight end due to his size (6'-3" 240 lbs.) and due to the competition he has faced (Ivy League schools). That being said, Dallas Clark did it and if needed he could be moved to a different position, just as an H-Back or fullback position. I think Juszczyk is a very good talent with NFL skills but he does certainly have some things working against him.

Philip Lutzenkirchen

TE - Auburn – Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 255      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 06/01/91      3 Cone: 7.15
40-Yard Dash: 4.94      Shuttle: 4.35

More than anything I want to see Lutzenkirchen drafted just to hear his name called as often as possible and hear people absolutely mangle it. Joking aside Lutzenkirchen is a blocking tight end that rarely takes part in the passing game other than lining up as a decoy or a few targets in the red zone. He is effective with his blocking however. Lutzenkirchen attacks his blocking target and does not wait for the defender to meet him. He nearly always makes first contact and stays with his block. Lutzenkirchen almost never gets driven backwards and is good at sealing off his assigned defender. Lutzenkirchen can get overzealous when attempting to block and over-commits. When this happens the defender is able to play the role of a bullfighter and sidesteps him or uses his momentum against him.

DEFENSIVE LINEMEN

Sheldon Richardson

DL - University of Missouri - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 30
Weight: 294      Vertical: 32"
Age: -      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.33
40-Yard Dash: 4.91      Shuttle: 4.59

Richardson is a clear prodigy that deserves to be drafted very high in the first round. With an unstoppable motor Richardson never quits on a play and as such he is able to make plays that nearly every defensive tackle can't make. His ability to keep a high playing motor can be directly attributable to just how well in shape he is. Richardson isn't your typical defensive tackle with a large gut hanging out, Richardson is bulky with tons of muscle but not fat. Richardson is lightning fast and explodes off the snap, finding himself in the backfield in the blink of an eye. When engaged he has a very good collection of techniques which only serves to make him even more dangerous. Concerns surrounding Richardson are linked to a shoulder surgery he underwent in 2011, while fully recovered it does need to be checked out. Additionally, Richardson broke team rules multiple times during his college career which is never something NFL teams like to see.

Jesse Williams

DL - Alabama - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 30
Weight: 323      Vertical: -
Age: 22      Broad: -
Birthdate: 11/02/90      3 Cone: 7.79
40-Yard Dash: 4.93      Shuttle: 4.75

Williams is typically a 3-tech tackle who can play other positions on the line if need be. Williams is a natural talent at the position who never takes his eyes off the ball and knows where on the field the ball carrier is at all times. If asked to he can either plug holes or shed blockers to get into the back field. Williams is very rarely pushed backwards by those blocking him as they have a hard time getting a solid surface to push against. This is due mostly to the angles he takes as well as how well he uses his hands. Williams is still fairly new to the game of football so we still may not have seen as good as he can possibly be.

Sharrif Floyd

DL - Florida - Junior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 35
Weight: 297      Vertical: 30"
Age: 20      Broad: 106"
Birthdate: 05/28/92      3 Cone: 7.40
40-Yard Dash: 4.92      Shuttle: 4.75

Floyd is a defensive lineman with a high running motor which has gained him a lot of notoriety among draft watchers. Floyd has an incredible knack for finding ways into the backfield. He is able to exploit small openings and muscle his way through those holes better than any prospect in this draft. Floyd gets great arm extension at the point of contact which gives him the space and options to operate. About the only downside to Floyd is his stamina. The long a play, or the game, goes on the less and less effective he becomes.

Star Lotulelei

DL - University of Utah - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 38
Weight: 311      Vertical: 30"
Age: 23      Broad: 105"
Birthdate: 12/20/89      3 Cone: 7.76
40-Yard Dash: 5.31      Shuttle: 4.65

Lotulelei is easily one of the top defensive prospects in his draft. He has a fast and extremely powerful burst off the snap. This burst coupled with his superior upper body strength and great hand and arm techniques allows Lotulelei to consistently disrupt plays in the backfield. Lotulelei is very good at shedding blockers, even against high caliber offensive linemen. Like most men his size he tends to gas out later in games which is obviously an issue in the highly competitive NFL. When at the NFL Combine it was determined that Lotulelei has a heart condition, this obviously endangers his draft position and could see his stock tumble despite loads of natural talent.

Chris Jones

DL - Bowling Green State University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 30
Weight: 302      Vertical: 31"
Age: 22      Broad: 105"
Birthdate: 07/12/90      3 Cone: 7.34
40-Yard Dash: 5.10      Shuttle: 4.44

Jones is a prospect that is flying under a lot of radars but he should be smack in the middle of their sights if they were smart. The reason for this is Jones shows every sign of being an elite prospect. He has an elite set of highly developed pass rushing moves. Jones flat out can make offensive linemen look bad, really bad. In his four years at college he accumulated 28 sacks and 157 tackles, that's jaw dropping for a defensive tackle. Worse yet, he did this while being double teamed most of his career. There is very, very little not to like about him. The only question mark may be he doesn't come from one of the elite conferences but his competition has been anything but low end.

Sylvester Williams

DL - University of North Carolina - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 27
Weight: 313      Vertical: 26.5"
Age: 24      Broad: 102"
Birthdate: 11/21/88      3 Cone: 7.93
40-Yard Dash: 5.03      Shuttle: 4.80

Williams is an incredible and scary mix of speed and strength which I feel is not getting anywhere near the amount of hype he deserves coming into the draft. Williams plays like a man 50 pounds lighter than his 300 pound body suggests. He is incredibly quick off the ball and can fit through gaps much smaller than one would think he could. Williams also has a very good collection of techniques to dispatch any blockers assigned to him. Williams the very desirable quality of always keeping his eye in the backfield and thus knows where the ball is at all times and is able to react to the play immediately. He has an incredible motor for his size as well, never giving up on a play. However, due to his high motor on every play his effectiveness starts to fade as the game goes on.

Johnathan Hankins

DL - Ohio State University - Junior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 320      Vertical: 26"
Age: 21      Broad: 104"
Birthdate: 01/01/92      3 Cone: 7.59
40-Yard Dash: 5.31      Shuttle: 4.61

Hankins, as one would expect, is a physically imposing prospect. He gets great penetration often disrupting both passes and rushes in the backfield. Hankins is so much of a threat to disrupt plays that he will often draw double teams if the ball is supposed to go near him. He has great brute strength and can use it to dominate even the biggest of linemen. Unfortunately though he depends too much on that raw strength and as such has an underdeveloped pass rush. He will try to simply muscle into the backfield as opposed to being smart and using technique to do so. In order to take the next step he is going to have to merge his strength with smart, technique heavy rush. Hankins does not move all that well laterally and is essentially a straight line rusher with little to no ability to change course if the play isn't in his line of sight.

Kawann Short

DL - Purdue - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 29
Weight: 299      Vertical: 27"
Age: 24      Broad: 100"
Birthdate: 02/02/89      3 Cone: 7.55
40-Yard Dash: 5.08      Shuttle: 4.65

Short has a very good set of well-developed techniques that often allow him to shed blockers. Short has very good strength that he effectively utilizes without relying on it as a crutch. He is able to use his technique and strength to keep blockers off of his interior allowing him to stay disengaged. This allows him to pursue a play as it develops quite well. If a play moves beyond him he doesn't give up on it, he pursues it until the whistle. Short absolutely must work at staying on the field more. He gets tired way too quickly and needs to be replaced which lowers his impact upon the game.

John Jenkins

DL - Georgia - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 30
Weight: 351      Vertical: 24.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 96"
Birthdate: 07/11/89      3 Cone: 7.74
40-Yard Dash: 5.10      Shuttle: 4.94

Jenkins is an absolutely behemoth, measuring 6'-3" and 360 pounds. Due to his size alone he is an overpowering force but coupled with his strength he not only draws double teams but requires them. Jenkins chugs his massive legs to keep his momentum going and makes it tough for offensive linemen to maintain the pocket. Jenkins is able to move down the line very quickly in order to close on a ball carrier and wraps up beautifully. Jenkins will make a perfect fit to play nose tackle in the NFL. While his size is a benefit at times it is also a hindrance at other times. A major issue with Jenkins is his conditioning, he appears sluggish many times and this will likely require some weight loss to fix. I'm not overly impressed with his burst off the snap either but this could improve with more conditioning.

Jordan Hill

DL - Pennsylvania State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 28
Weight: 303      Vertical: 22.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 103"
Birthdate: 02/08/91      3 Cone: 7.49
40-Yard Dash: 5.23      Shuttle: 4.51

Hill is a great prospect for a team looking for a pure one-tech defensive tackle who can hold his own and do more than just fill space. Hill has great lateral movement and can move well in pursuit of the play. In pass rush situations Hill has several good techniques and can easily shed blockers. Much of this is due to his initial low burst off of the line to establish leverage and his extraordinary ability to keep linemen's hands off of him. However, if a lineman squares up with him he is regularly overpowered and taken completely out of plays. In order to be effective Hill tends to use angles to be effective. If teams alert their guards to stop his initial angle burst and then hand him off to the center then his effectiveness evaporates.

Kwame Geathers

DL - Georgia - Junior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 355      Vertical: 26.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 103"
Birthdate: 10/04/90      3 Cone: 8.11
40-Yard Dash: 5.44      Shuttle: 5.27

Geathers big negative and his big positive are basically the same, he doesn't move much. On the plus side he is just an absolutely huge player, standing over 6'-5" and weighing in at over 340 pounds it's easy to see why he doesn't get moved around much by blockers. Geathers stand his ground and doesn't allow plays to develop in the interior of the line. On the flip side his size is a clear indication that he isn't going to be zooming around the field either and in this case that indication is true. Geather's pass rushing technique is horrible and isn't a huge threat to disrupt many plays in the backfield. He isn't particularly good at anything other than just being big.

Bennie Logan

DL - Louisiana State University - Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 30
Weight: 304      Vertical: 25"
Age: 23      Broad: 104"
Birthdate: 12/28/89      3 Cone: 7.53
40-Yard Dash: 5.05      Shuttle: 4.67

Logan has been given the honor of wearing the LSU number 18 in this his junior year, a privilege given to a player who is expected to be the heart and soul of their defense. Logan has taken up that mantle with great leadership on and off the field. Logan's game centralizes around staying low out of the snap and using his strong, lower body. Upon contact he keeps his legs chugging to try to get penetration. Unfortunately that's about where his game ends. Logan is very slow off the snap with many of those around him already a step or two into their rush before he rises out of his stance. He fails to get much penetration as he depends too much on raw strength and has very little in the way of technique to speak of. Additionally, I'm not overly impressed by his effort as he can be seen dogging it many times.

Akeem Spence

DL - University of Illinois - Junior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 37
Weight: 307      Vertical: 30"
Age: 21      Broad: 107"
Birthdate: 11/29/91      3 Cone: 7.82
40-Yard Dash: 5.15      Shuttle: 4.72

Spence gets a good initial push and rarely gets driven backwards upon contact. He also has a decent variety of techniques which include a bull rush, arm club, spin move and occasionally a swim move. Spence has the impressive capability of being able to keep two linemen off of his interior which is impress both for the fact that he can do that and due to the fact he draws double teams enough for me to notice this. He keeps his eyes in the backfield and can move along the line to meet the ball carrier or block his route. Spence has a high motor and doesn't stop trying to make a play, even moving downfield to try to make a tackle. Spence needs to work on the fact that he stands up at the snap which make it hard to keep driving when his leverage is gone.

William Campbell

DL - University of Michigan - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 35
Weight: 308      Vertical: 27"
Age: 21      Broad: 106"
Birthdate: 07/06/91      3 Cone: 7.30
40-Yard Dash: 5.15      Shuttle: 4.70

Campbell has a lot of tools which may help him at the next level but he needs to do a lot of improvement to get on the field on a regular basis. He looks the part and has worked to improve himself, and his game, by losing around 50 pounds in the offseason. This has helped his speed and I believe has giving him a newly found technique to squeeze between blockers and disrupt the backfield. Unfortunately he hasn't done a whole lot with his size or ability to get in the backfield. He lacks any real moves other than the one I mentioned earlier which is worrying that he depends so much on his strength. Campbell does keep his eyes in the backfield and moves towards the ball, he just can't do so effectively as he has problems shedding blockers with any regularity. He is a project for any team that selects him. Throw in an absolutely ridiculous arrest for vandalism due to him trying to slide across the hood of a car which became damaged, and you've now got an arrest record to explain if you're Campbell. As dumb as the arrest is we classify any arrest as a character concern, no exceptions.

Montori Hughes

DL - University of Tennessee (Martin) - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 330      Vertical: 26.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 104"
Birthdate: 08/25/90      3 Cone: 7.85
40-Yard Dash: 5.23      Shuttle: 4.70

Hughes is a big prospect who has the versatility to play the 3-Tech or 5-Tech which immediately increases his value. He also is very effective at taking up space in the middle as is expected by any tackle worth his salt. That's frankly about where his upside ends in my opinion. Hughes has the bad habit of standing straight up at the snap of the ball which hands all the leverage over to the guy blocking him. He also has a hard time either penetrating or getting free from blockers which is pretty worrying, especially against the small school competition he has faced. Hughes rarely uses any kind of penetration moves, instead he tries to overpower his way into the backfield which already doesn't work and will be even less effective in the NFL. At times Hughes will lose track of where on the field the ball is which makes him look lost. His dismissal from the University of Tennessee is fairly worrying.

Josh Boyd

DL - Mississippi State University - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 32
Weight: 300      Vertical: 26.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 104"
Birthdate: 08/03/89      3 Cone: 7.16
40-Yard Dash: 5.14      Shuttle: 4.64

Boyd is not a particularly flashy prospect but he can demand double teams on a regular basis. Boyd can occupy large areas of the interior and if not double teamed he can cause troubles for teams trying to run it up the middle. However, Boyd doesn't have much in the way of technique to speak of and can get occupied fairly easy. He isn't particularly powerful so even trying to bull rush blockers doesn't work all that well. Boyd can also be seen giving only average effort while the ball is near him and giving up on a play after it passes him. Overall Boyd is just an average prospect that won't excite a lot of teams.

DEFENSIVE ENDS

Ezekiel Ansah

DE - Brigham Young University - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 271      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 24      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 05/29/89      3 Cone: 7.11
40-Yard Dash: 4.63      Shuttle: 4.26

First off let state just how much I love Ansah's motor. He does not take one second of one play off. Ansah seems to be everywhere at one on the field. Plus, what isn't to love about a player who can (and does) play every position on the defensive live, and plays every position very well? Ansah is extremely fast off the line and has a great set of techniques to shed blockers including a solid bull rush, above average spin move and very good with his arm fighting. What is even more surprising is that Ansah has only been playing football since he came to the United States in 2010. This means that despite how good he already is, he can get even BETTER! There is the chance that some teams might want a finished product and may pass on him but I would be shocked if that were the case.

Damontre Moore

DE - Texas A&M - Junior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 250      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 20      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 09/11/92      3 Cone: 7.08
40-Yard Dash: 4.89      Shuttle: 4.33

Moore has developed a lot in his junior year, leading his team in several defensive categories such as sack and tackles for a loss. One of Moore's best attributes is his quickness off the line. Moore will already be a step or two into his rush before most tackles have a chance to react. When he is engaged he keeps driving his legs and doesn't stop. Most of his best work comes when he takes an inside route towards the ball carrier. Even if a play develops away from him he doesn't stop, he keeps on running to the ball and will routinely make tackles downfield. When rushing the quarterback Moore can be pushed around the perimeter of the pocket and out of the play. His arrest for drug possession is going to require some answers from NFL teams.

Bjoern Werner

DE - Florida State University - Junior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 25
Weight: 255      Vertical: 31"
Age: 22      Broad: 111"
Birthdate: 08/30/90      3 Cone: 7.30
40-Yard Dash: 4.83      Shuttle: 4.40

We've all heard Werner's great story about growing up in Germany and learning about football in his native land. He so fell in love with it that he moved to the United States to play and has only been playing since his junior year in high school. Great story right? Well, great player too it turns out. Werner has great explosion off of the line and lowers his shoulder while driving to take a much more direct path to the quarterback. He sheds blockers with amazing ease and is able to move laterally extremely well. Werner's tackling is very solid, he delivers great pop when making contact and does a good job of wrapping up the ball carrier. Much of Werner's success can be attributed to the fact that he does not move to the ball but he moves to where the ball will be, this enables him to very regularly be in the right place at the right time. One knock on Werner is that if the ball has gone past him he almost always stops giving full effort where other prospects still go full speed after the ball carrier.

Barkevious Mingo

DE - Louisiana State University - Junior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 241      Vertical: 37"
Age: 22      Broad: 128"
Birthdate: 10/04/90      3 Cone: 6.84
40-Yard Dash: 4.58      Shuttle: 4.39

First and foremost, Mingo is a very quick and strong pass rusher who has a ton of raw talent. Mingo is the kind of player who will give any blocker he matches up with a long game. He will wear them down with how strong he is and how high his motor runs, simply put, he just doesn't stop coming at you. His speed, strength and flexibility allow him to take a much more direct and low route to the quarterback which gets him in the backfield and regularly disrupt plays. If the play gets past him he still isn't done, he will pursue a play to the whistle which is the kind of heart and dedication teams are looking for. In the NFL Mingo is going to need to work on adding some weight to compete with the stronger and larger competition. he is also going to have to develop his technique more as simple speed rushing simply won't cut it at the next level.

Margus Hunt

DE - Southern Methodist University - Senior

Height: 6'-8"      Bench Press: 38
Weight: 280      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 25      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: 06/14/87      3 Cone: 7.07
40-Yard Dash: 4.60      Shuttle: 4.51

Hunt, simply put, is a beast, an animal, and is going to be incredibly dangerous in the NFL if he can be slotted as a pure defensive end. While at SMU he has been moved between defensive tackle and defensive end, and while he was a force at defensive tackle, it's when he lined up as a defensive end that he truly shined. Hunt has a decent amount of pass rushing moves that he has room to expand upon but has a solid foundation to work from. He does well keeping linemen's hands off of his interior so he doesn't get locked up. When rushing the quarterback he can get low and take a very direct route. Hunt has a good burst off the line and when combined with his astounding 6'-8", 280 pound body it's nearly impossible to stop him. His biggest downside is that he doesn't have a ton of experience. To say that he is raw is an understatement but he can be coached up, if he does get some decent coaching then watch out!

Dion Jordan

DE - Oregon - Senior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 248      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 03/05/90      3 Cone: 7.02
40-Yard Dash: 4.60      Shuttle: 4.35

I'd have to say there aren't many defensive ends in this draft that are more NFL ready than Jordan is. He does so many things right that I think he will be one of the more solid defensive prospects coming out of this draft class. First, Jordan gets off the snap in a blink and has excellent speed to get himself in the backfield. He has a decent array of pass rushing moves but relies mainly on his speed rush and his ripping technique. Jordan has absolutely amazing closing speed and can track down a ball carrier going away from his side and make the tackle. His tackling technique is very good as well, as he wraps up ball carriers and makes sure to hold on until they are on the ground. Finally, despite his bulk and size, Jordan is able to play both man and zone pass coverage very effectively.

Michael Buchanan

DE - University of Illinois – Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 255      Vertical: 33"
Age: 22      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 01/24/91      3 Cone: 6.91
40-Yard Dash: 4.78      Shuttle: 4.44

Buchanan is one of the above average, pass rushers in this draft class. His best work comes when he takes his rush inside, finding holes opened by preoccupied blockers, he is able to burst through the line and regularly disrupt plays in the backfield. When rushing to the outside his best tactic is speed rushing where he bursts quickly and takes a direct route to the quarterback. Buchanan has an impressive bag of tricks when it comes to his rushing technique, most notably his spin moves and swim moves. Due to his height/weight distribution it has already been shown he can be pushed around at times. To really be a force he is going to have to add a good chunk of weight to his 6'-5" frame.

Alex Okafor

DE - Texas – Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 264      Vertical: 36"
Age: 22      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 02/08/91      3 Cone: 7.26
40-Yard Dash: 4.88      Shuttle: 4.40

Okafor is a good speed rusher with the ability to close quickly on the quarterback due to how low he can get. Okafor does a very good job of not being controlled by any blocker assigned to block him and flows toward the ball carrier. This allows him to be in position to make the tackle against rushers or at the very least he helps slow the play down. Unfortunately if a play gets by him he almost no pursuit speed so he absolutely must keep the play in front of him. Okafor was arrested for failure to obey a lawful order with two other teammates last season. The incident did not result in a suspension and was later dropped in court but it is enough for me to pull out the dreaded "character concern" label since it will be a question he has to answer in his NFL interviews.

John Simon

DE - Ohio State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 38
Weight: 257      Vertical: 34"
Age: -      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.10
40-Yard Dash: 4.68      Shuttle: 4.42

Usually I like to talk up a player before giving the downside, however, for Simon it feels as if the reverse would fit better. First off, he is far from your prototypical defensive end, he is undersized both in height and weight which never sells NFL teams very well. However, Simon's heart and technique will be what will interest NFL teams. Simon has a great set of pass rushing techniques that seem to utter befuddle many blockers. If they think he is going outside then he goes inside, if they think he'll bullrush then he'll use a swim move or spin move. As funny as it sounds, it just seems like he is in their head. Simon plays at a speed that you just don't see many defensive ends play at down after down. We've seen smaller players prove everyone wrong in the NFL before and I think Simon could be another in a long line of those type of players.

Datone Jones

DE - UCLA - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 29
Weight: 283      Vertical: 31.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 112"
Birthdate: 07/24/90      3 Cone: 7.32
40-Yard Dash: 4.80      Shuttle: 4.32

Jones is a very versatile player who can play nearly any position along the defensive line, as already has done so. Jones has a very solid frame which will allow him to fit into whatever role an NFL team needs. His upper body and lower body strength is very good which allows him to hit a blocker's upper body hard and to keep a consistent drive going with his legs. Jones has a good collection of moves to penetrate and has a great react to the snap. Jones needs to add some weight if he is expected to play inside more often. He also must work on shedding blockers more effectively as he tends to get wrapped up by larger blockers.

Quanterus Smith

DE - Western Kentucky University - Senior

Height: 6'-5"	Bench Press: -
Weight: 250	Vertical: -
Age: 23	Broad: -
Birthdate: 11/26/89	3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -	Shuttle: -

Smith has a very well developed collection of pass rushing moves and techniques that have served him very well in college and will likely serve him just as well in the NFL. Smith is very good at keeping blockers hands off of him through his very good hand usage. He is very quick off of the snap and keeps that speed going throughout the play. Smith's motor is very high, he doesn't seem to fatigue as the game goes on. He can have some trouble shedding a larger blocker, as such he needs to gain some weight to be more effective in the NFL.

Corey Lemonier

DE- Auburn - Junior

Height: 6'-3"	Bench Press: 27
Weight: 255	Vertical: 33"
Age: 21	Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 11/19/91	3 Cone: 7.14
40-Yard Dash: 4.60	Shuttle: 4.40

Lemonier has a ton of strength that he uses to push blockers around and open holes for himself. His excellent speed then allows him to burst through those holes en route to the ball carrier. Lemonier has an excellent motor and vision that allows him to spot the ball, however far away, and to keep moving until get gets to the ball. Lemonier is quick enough to allow him to fall back into pass coverage and he does so fairly well. At times he doesn't get off the line at the snap of the ball and needs to recover the time he losses. Lemonier wants so badly to be in the middle of every play that his aggressiveness will sometimes take him completely out of it by over-pursuing.

Sam Montgomery

DE - Louisiana State University - Junior

Height: 6'-3"	Bench Press: 22
Weight: 262	Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 22	Broad: 114"
Birthdate: 05/25/90	3 Cone: 7.18
40-Yard Dash: 4.81	Shuttle: 4.51

Montgomery is an undeniably strong edge rusher has amazing raw power. He always plays until the whistle and is often seen pursuing a ball carrier even when he has little chance to catch him. Montgomery is a solid tackler, popping his target solidly and wrapping him up with proper tackling technique. Unfortunately Montgomery is very slow off the ball, usually the last defender to move after the ball is snapped. He has next to no technique to speak of, relying on raw power in his rush. As such, many times he will be completely shutdown by a blocker with solid blocking skills. Montgomery has a bad habit of over-pursuing plays and allowing the ball carrier to run right by him.

Cornellius (Tank) Carradine

DE - Florida State University - Senior

Height: 6'-4"	Bench Press: 32
Weight: 276	Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 24	Broad: 111"
Birthdate: 02/18/89	3 Cone: 7.20
40-Yard Dash: 4.75	Shuttle: 4.56

Carradine has a good set of techniques he is especially aggressive at keeping blockers hands off of his body and has a very good swim move. He tends to take a very direct route to the quarterback when pass rushing. He is able to do this due to his ability to keep his body low, specially his shoulder, and uses that low play ability to turn the corner quickly. Carradine does not have an overly quick burst off the snap. He can be hesitant as he tries to determine where the ball is going.

Brandon Sharpe

DE - Syracuse - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 260      Vertical: 29.5"
Age: -      Broad: 103"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.50
40-Yard Dash: 4.94      Shuttle: 4.69

Sharpe is another prospect flying under a lot of people's radar, this is both warranted and unwarranted. First off, Sharpe just finds ways to get make plays. In his college career he has accumulated 14.5 sacks, with seven of those coming this season when he was given the starting job. He has some decent pass rushing moves with a bull rush, decent hand fighting and a good rip move. He stays low out off the snap and is able to get good leverage on his blocker and then keeps driving his legs. Sharpe has a great motor and doesn't seem to tire one bit. He has the ability to get his inner shoulder low to cut the route he takes to the quarterback down. However, Sharpe doesn't always dip his shoulder, it is extremely hit or miss. He isn't as big physically as some of the defensive end prospects that will selected before him so he may get overshadowed. His best hope may be to convert to an outside linebacker role where his size may not be as much of a liability.

Joe Kruger

DE - Utah - Junior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: 24
Weight: 269      Vertical: 34"
Age: 20      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 06/04/92      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.83      Shuttle: 4.46

Kruger is a well-built defensive end with a very strong upper body and diving legs. This allows him to usually get good leverage right from the start. Kruger further exploits this advantage by getting very good arm extension so that he can keep free of his blocker while driving him back. If he could develop more rushing techniques he would truly be dangerous. Unfortunately, Kruger relies almost exclusively on a bull rush to do his work. He tends to also take a wider route towards the quarterback which can take him too far out of the play many times. On the plus side, he has a non-stop motor and can often be seen chasing a play down the field which you've got to love for a big man. Oh, did I mention his brother plays for the Baltimore Ravens and his other brother is also in this draft also? Yeah, the pedigree is obvious!

Lavar Edwards

DE - Louisiana State University - Senior

Height: 6'-5"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 258      Vertical: 33"
Age: 23      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 04/29/90      3 Cone: 7.03
40-Yard Dash: 4.80      Shuttle: 4.51

Edwards looks to be one of those players who has the fundamentals down and now just needs to work on some of the smaller stuff. For instance, I haven't seen a defensive end maintain containment on the edge any better than Edwards does. Edwards stays home and shuts down the outside. He also is very effective at keeping linemen out of his interior so that he can freely disengage and pursue the ball carrier. Edwards big downfall is one he likely won't be able to improve much, his speed. He just isn't all that fast and this will make it hard for him to catch on in the NFL

Craig Roh

DE - University of Michigan - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 271      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 114"
Birthdate: 01/25/91      3 Cone: 7.27
40-Yard Dash: 4.91      Shuttle: 4.41

Roh is far from a flashy player, he doesn't make headlines, he just shows up and tries to help the team win. Roh has a lot of heart and doesn't quit on a play, he keeps going until the whistle and always seems to think he has a shot at a tackle. You can't coach heart but you can build upon it. Roh needs to have his game improved from that starting point. He doesn't have a very wide array of rushing techniques and struggles to shed blockers. Many of his sacks are essentially coverage sacks and come because the quarterback held the ball too long while Roh kept his motor going. Overall Roh is very vanilla and blends into the crowd.

Cornelius Washington

DE - Georgia - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 36
Weight: 265      Vertical: 39"
Age: 23      Broad: 128"
Birthdate: 09/10/89      3 Cone: 7.48
40-Yard Dash: 4.55      Shuttle: 4.75

I'd love to write about how great Washington is because he seems to have all of the athletic ability in the world. He flat out looks like an NFL player standing over 6'-5" and weighs in at over 260 pounds. He is extremely fast and strong as well. Unfortunately he just hasn't been able to put together all of his god-given talents. Washington has a horrible time shedding blocks to the point where he can be taken completely out of a game by an adequate lineman. He has very little in the way of pass rushing techniques and will usually just get overwhelmed. He will regularly get driven back when engaged. Overall his game is just sub-par.

William Gholston

DE - Michigan State University - Junior

Height: 6'-6"      Bench Press: 23
Weight: 281      Vertical: 28.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 110"
Birthdate: 07/31/91      3 Cone: 7.20
40-Yard Dash: 4.96      Shuttle: 4.59

Gholston's huge selling point has to be his amazing ability to bat down passes with 10 passes swatted down just this season. He is a huge bodied prospect with good athleticism. Gholston has a lot of potential but sadly that's about all he has in terms of his game. He finds it nearly impossible to shed blockers and isn't much of a factor when he is on the field. Gholston isn't much of a factor in the pass rush due to his very limited pass rushing technique. His main technique is a power rush which he depends on almost entirely. Gholston also fails to get or keep his eyes on the ball carrier with plays going right by him many times. A serious concern is Gholston's cool under pressure. We've seen him punch an opponent during a game and late hit while twisting an opponent's helmet in a particularly disturbing manner. Stupid plays like that and the loss of one's cool hurt teams, when the player hasn't produced much as it is then it just makes it that much worse! For that he gets the "Character Concerns/Questions" label.

Malliciah Goodman

DE - Clemson - Senior

Height: 6'-4"      Bench Press: 26
Weight: 276      Vertical: 31.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 114"
Birthdate: 01/04/90      3 Cone: 7.10
40-Yard Dash: 4.87      Shuttle: 4.48

Goodman has all the tools he needs to be a top notch player, he just hasn't been able to put them all together effectively it seems. Goodman gets low and dips his shoulder effectively when pass rushing. He also keeps blockers at an arm's length which provides him some freedom to move and react with the play. Unfortunately, he doesn't really react well. Goodman tends to be a one trick pony, he does best in pass rushing but when it comes to defending the rush he disappears. Goodman is also very slow off the snap on some plays, still standing in his stance as everyone else is moving. This strikes me as very bizarre since no matter where he is looking the play is moving, but he isn't.

Meshak Williams

DE - Kansas State University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 247      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 06/03/91      3 Cone: 7.56
40-Yard Dash: 5.04      Shuttle: 4.59

You want to cheer for players like Williams, he's undersized, he's made it this far and if he can make to the NFL you'd like to think his heart can will him into a role with his team. However, the facts are Williams just doesn't have what it takes to be a defensive end in the NFL. First off, he doesn't have an ideal NFL defensive end frame, that doesn't mean players of different sizes can't make it where they don't fit in with the norm, but it is one strike against him. Second, his pass rushing skills are sub-par, he has no real technique to speak of, he just throws himself at blockers and hopes to find a way into the backfield. Finally, much of Williams' success has come from cleaning up his teammates work as opposed to fully making the play on his own. When asked to do so he is not the best tackler in the world as many times ball carriers simply slip is grasp or he gets off balance when trying to make the tackle. Overall there may be a future for Williams in the NFL but I don't believe it to be at defensive end.

OUTSIDE LINEBACKERS

Jarvis Jones

OLB - Georgia - Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 245      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 111"
Birthdate: 10/13/89      3 Cone: 7.45
40-Yard Dash: 4.85      Shuttle: 4.69

Jones is probably the best pure pass rusher in this class. He has a top end burst off the line and when turning the corner towards the quarterback. His closing speed is excellent and allows him to sneak up on quarterbacks well before they expect him to be there. Jones has the unique skills of knowing where the ball is being carried by a ball carrier and swatting or ripping at it. Coaches always teach this skill but Jones seems to perform it instinctively. He has a great motor and is everywhere on the field trying to make a tackle. The big knock on Jones is his medical condition known as spinal stenosis. This condition is the narrowing of the spinal column and the worry is that the high impact and multiple collisions of the NFL will make his career shorter than average. There are some reports that he got good news on his condition that he is sharing with NFL teams so his stock may rise a bit the closer to the draft we get. Additionally, his Draft Day was underwhelming with a 40-yard dash time of 4.90. Despite all of this he is still the most NFL ready prospect at this position.

Alec Ogletree

OLB - Georgia - Junior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 242      Vertical: 33.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 09/25/91      3 Cone: 7.16
40-Yard Dash: 4.63      Shuttle: 4.39

Ogletree is a great talent but where he played in college likely won't be the position he is drafted for in the draft. Ogletree has played middle linebacker for the last two years at Georgia but his skill set and body frame make him a likely transition candidate to outside linebacker. He has great range and is able to make plays all over the field. Ogletree is absolutely excellent at avoiding blockers, slashing through traffic to make plays. His ability to navigate through traffic is truly something to see and one of his best attributes. Ogletree is very good at pass coverage due in large part to his superior speed. Ogletree needs to work on wrapping up when tackling as opposed to simply trying to make highlight "pop" hits. Ogletree needs to add some weight to his 6'-3" frame to take full advantage of his size. A huge issue is Ogletree's behavior in college which included charges of theft, possible drug test failures and most recently a DUI. This is well beyond an isolated incident and is now a trend of very poor choice in his life, something that will cause some teams to pass on him.

Zaviar Gooden

OLB - Missouri - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 27
Weight: 234      Vertical: 38.5"
Age: -      Broad: 131"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.71
40-Yard Dash: 4.47      Shuttle: 4.18

When all is said and done Gooden could quite possibly be the best outside linebacker taken in this draft class. That's a big statement but Gooden has all the skills to make that happen. His motor is incredible, he doesn't stop, period. He is all over the field and seems to be in nearly every play. Gooden moves through traffic with ease and when engaged he is very good at shedding blockers. He has excellent tackling technique and will stop many ball carriers dead in their tracks. Gooden has the ability to play possessed, totaling 15 tackles this season in a single game against Syracuse. Finally, his Combine and Pro Day performances are jaw dropping. He lead all linebackers in every timed drill and posted a 4.47 40-yard dash at the Combine. At his Pro Day he posted a 38.5" vertical jump. Put another way he can jump over three feet straight up, go try to do that on your own, it's damn hard! Gooden isn't perfect, he needs to work on his pass coverage as he will bite on head fakes and is slow to react to cuts. He must also take more direct paths to the quarterback when blitzing as he will usually go right around the pocket. Finally, he will need to add a few pounds to be adequately prepared for the NFL game.

Jelani Jenkins

OLB - Florida - Junior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 27
Weight: 243      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 111"
Birthdate: 03/13/92      3 Cone: 6.97
40-Yard Dash: 4.65      Shuttle: 4.28

Jenkins talent is absolutely undeniable, his speed and explosiveness is unparalleled in this draft class. Jenkins has great instincts and flows to the ball. He cuts through traffic and puts his nose exactly where it needs to be. Jenkins attacks the ball and doesn't wait for a ball carrier to come to him. He is also excellent in coverage, acting more like a defensive back than a linebacker. Jenkins' size is an issue as he is undersized to play the position in the NFL. He also has had some injuries in college which include an injured thumb and broken foot which may have affected his play in his final college season.

Phillip Steward

OLB - University of Houston – Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 26
Weight: 237      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 09/07/90      3 Cone: 7.43
40-Yard Dash: 4.62      Shuttle: 4.57

Steward is a prospect flying tragically under the radar for as skilled as he is. Steward is amazing in run support, flying to the ball carrier and consistently making the tackle while wrapping up. If a blocker is attempting to block him he seems to have an uncanny ability to disengage himself from the blocker and go after the ball carrier, he is perhaps one of the best defensive players at disengaging from a blocker that I've seen. He moves through traffic effortlessly and is almost always involved in the play one way or another. When in pass defense he is very physical at the line, dominantly jamming tight ends much larger than himself. Steward also has very good speed that allows him to stick with most receivers he is tasked with covering. On the downside he is a bit small by NFL standards, measuring in at 6'-0" and 230 pounds. If he can add a little muscle and a little weight he should get to where he needs to be. If he goes undrafted I'm going to lose my mind screaming at any NFL team to snatch him up. The NFL's aversion to risk taking in the draft may very well seem him go undrafted despite me having him ranked as high as I do. However, I ultimately feel I'll be justified in this ranking if he is given a shot.

Chase Thomas

OLB - Stanford - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 244      Vertical: 32"
Age: 23      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 06/10/89      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.91      Shuttle: 4.31

Thomas is one of the best pass rushers in this draft. The way he is able to keep blockers at bay and move away from them is superb. Thomas' pass rushing techniques are absolutely excellent with a full repertoire of above average moves. He is also very good at disguising his intentions when blitzing and stunts with the best of them. Additionally, Thomas is an adequate pass defender, able to stick with receivers reasonably well. Thomas doesn't have elite speed but he does have a lot of heart and will pursue a play even after it is past him. I believe Thomas will make a good outside linebacker in a 3-4 defense at the next level.

Sean Porter

OLB - Texas A&M - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 229      Vertical: 35"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 01/12/91      3 Cone: 7.29
40-Yard Dash: 4.75      Shuttle: 4.40

Porter looks to be a good outside linebacker prospect for a team willing to take some time on him. His athleticism is excellent with speed to spare. He has shown the ability to disrupt plays in the backfield with great frequency when blitzing. Porter has excellent reaction to the ball and will sniff out a play very early as it unfolds. If he is blocked in space he has shown decent ability to shed blocks. Porter has extremely good coverage skills that quarterbacks would be wise not to test. Porter will need to bulk up as he isn't currently physically equipped to play in the NFL. He will need to add both weight and muscle to be fully effective.

Keith Pough

OLB - Howard University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 239      Vertical: 33"
Age: -      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.28
40-Yard Dash: 4.87      Shuttle: 4.47

One statistic should say a lot about Pough, the fact he holds the record for the most tackles for a loss in FCS history. This is due in large part of just how explosive Pough is off the snap. Many times it seems as if Pough knows the snap count as he is in the backfield as quick as an offensive player would be. He has extremely explosive closing speed and is able to track down a ball carrier from behind if the play is moving away from him. Pough has good tackling technique and wraps up ball carriers. Overall Pough needs to bulk up and gain some weight to be effective in the NFL. He will also need to convince teams that his skills playing in the FCS will translate to the NFL effectively.

Jamie Collins

OLB - Southern Mississippi - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 250      Vertical: 41.5"
Age: -      Broad: 139"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.10
40-Yard Dash: 4.64      Shuttle: 4.32

Collins has great upper body strength, using it to push around any blockers assigned to block him. Collins is absolutely excellent with his arm fighting using it fighting off blocks with ease, moving by blockers quickly. He is also excellent at identifying plays quickly and positioning himself to make a play. Collins' pass coverage is very good as well, floating with ease into coverage and severely limiting the number of passes thrown near him. Collins would stand to add some weight as larger, elite linemen are able to keep him occupied. He must also work on his backside contain, he can get too overzealous pursuing a play, namely rushes, and can be exploited with a reverse.

Khaseem Greene

OLB - Rutgers - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 241      Vertical: 30"
Age: 24      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 02/04/89      3 Cone: 7.58
40-Yard Dash: 4.71      Shuttle: 4.20

Greene has a lot of tools you look for in a quality outside linebacker. First off, he is very quick and can move quickly to the play and doesn't let anyone get in his way. He is an excellent pass rusher and always seems to find a route to rush, or several times sack, an opposing quarterback. As a former safety, Greene has very good pass coverage ability for a linebacker. I'd like to see him put some weight on as I feel it will be necessary for him to be effective. He also needs to work on his decisiveness as he will waste precious time pausing to identify where a play is headed. Greene suffered a broken leg last season which he appears to have healed fully from but should field some questions about.

Gerald Hodges

OLB - Pennsylvania State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 243      Vertical: 35"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 01/17/91      3 Cone: 7.27
40-Yard Dash: 4.78      Shuttle: 4.25

Hodges is another great graduate from Linebacker U. He is very good at attacking a play with enthusiasm. Hodge has good tackling technique, wrapping up anyone he touches. He has fairly good speed for an outside linebacker which is a big selling point. Hodges has shown decent pass coverage ability but larger tight ends or receivers give him problems. Hodges appears to be about as large as his frame will permit. This is going to be an issue since he isn't your prototypical height or weight for an outside linebacker. Additionally, he tends to over-pursue plays and put himself out of position when a ball carrier cuts back. Finally, he does have some issues freeing himself from blockers which take him completely out of plays.

Travis Long

OLB - Washington State University - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 243      Vertical: -
Age: 21      Broad: -
Birthdate: 07/24/91      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

Long has a very good burst off of the snap. He stays slow and gets his hands extended to get himself leverage and space to maneuver. Long has a good set of rushing techniques that he employs to keep him moving towards the ball. He also has some interesting fakes to really throw the blocker off balance. Long takes a nice, low route to the quarterback. When he makes a tackle he wraps up well and doesn't let the ball carrier escape. Long has decent speed but he takes good angles to make himself look quicker. He suffered a shoulder and knee injury in college but only miss one game, his last one.

Sio Moore

OLB - University of Connecticut - Senior

Height: 6'-1'      Bench Press: 29
Weight: 245      Vertical: 38"
Age: 22      Broad: 127"
Birthdate: 05/02/90      3 Cone: 7.49
40-Yard Dash: 4.65      Shuttle: 4.31

Moore is an above average pass rusher with the ability to create pressure on the quarterback any time he is set loose. Moore is deadly when he has a ball carrier in his sights, closing with a speed that is amazing. In pass coverage Moore is very good zone coverage but tends to excel man coverage. In man he never really lets the receiver get more than an arms-length away from him even when making their breaks. Despite running an impressive 4.65 40-yard dash time at the Combine, Moore doesn't appear to be very fast on the field. He also struggles to get off of blocks which takes him completely out of plays at times.

Trevarado Williams

OLB - University of Connecticut - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 30
Weight: 241      Vertical: 38"
Age: 22      Broad: 124"
Birthdate: 12/31/90      3 Cone: 7.00
40-Yard Dash: 4.57      Shuttle: 4.19

Williams is very good at what he specializes in but beyond that he is fairly vanilla. First, his specialty is speed rushing from the outside. Williams is extremely fast for a linebacker, clocking in with a 4.5 40 at the NFL Combine and he has been clocked as low as 4.4. That is incredible speed for a wide receiver, much less a linebacker. Williams utilizes that speed extremely effectively off the end, blowing right by most offensive linemen who are much slower than he is. If he gets into the backfield his speed allows him to close on a ball carrier in no time. Beyond his speed he hasn't shown much in the way of technique. If a linemen is able to get in front of him then Williams is effectively out of the play, simply put. Williams has no real pass rush moves to free himself in such a situation and he get just gets dominated by larger linemen.

Jake Knott

OLB - Iowa State University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 243      Vertical: 34"
Age: 22      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 10/24/90      3 Cone: 7.16
40-Yard Dash: 4.84      Shuttle: 4.30

Knott is a good all-around player that could catch on with an NFL team looking for quality depth. First off Knott is a quality run support linebacker. He can sniff out a run and react quickly to the play. Knott takes the most direct route to the ball carrier to limit the amount of yards he gets, wraps up well and has a good tackling technique to make sure he isn't getting away. In pass protection he is fairly decent, being able to stick with his assigned receiver. Knott moves well around the field and supports plays very well. His college career was ended by a shoulder injury so he will need to prove he is fully healed for NFL teams to give him a second look.

DeVonte Holloman

OLB - University of Southern Carolina - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 243      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 02/12/91      3 Cone: 7.30
40-Yard Dash: 4.71      Shuttle: 4.26

Holloman could quite possibly be the best pass coverage linebacker in this draft. A big part of his excellent pass coverage comes from the fact that he played safety for several years before converting to outside linebacker for this season. He also has a great nose for the ball in run support. Holloman quickly identifies rushes and moves to the ball carrier with urgency. When rushing the quarterback Holloman needs work on his technique. He will regularly take angles that aren't optimal and doesn't have much in the way of pass rushing moves which tend to get him nullified by blockers. Holloman was arrested for a DUI during his college career so there are some maturity concerns that need to be addressed.

Lerentee McCray

OLB - Florida - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 250      Vertical: -
Age: -      Broad: -
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

As much as I'd like to like McCray, his game just doesn't allow it. He has a few good parts to his game such as his quickness but beyond that he doesn't have a whole lot to offer. McCray has next to no pass rushing technique to speak of. He relies exclusively on his power but even that isn't overwhelming. When McCray gets engaged by a blocker he has no real way to disengage and gets taken completely out of the play. His lack of elite talent coupled with numerous injuries in his college career make it a long shot for him to catch on in the NFL.

INSIDE/MIDDLE LINEBACKERS

Inside/Middle Linebackers

Arthur Brown

ILB - Kansas State University - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 241      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 06/17/90      3 Cone: 7.07
40-Yard Dash: 4.67      Shuttle: 4.31

Brown is such a natural talent that I'd be surprised if his name isn't called on Day One and absolutely floored if he doesn't go in the second round. Brown is fearless, closing on ball carriers with amazing speed. It seems as if he has ESP and is able to foresee where a play is going, this speaks volumes to just how well he understands the game and reacts to what he is seeing. Brown takes excellent angles to the ball carrier, being exactly where he needs to be to minimize any gain on the play. A big downside to Brown is his size, he only weighs in at around 230 pounds. To be as effective as he has been in his college career Brown must add weight to his frame.

Manti Te'o

ILB - Notre Dame - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 21
Weight: 241      Vertical: 33"
Age: 22      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 01/26/91      3 Cone: 7.13
40-Yard Dash: 4.78      Shuttle: 4.27

There likely isn't a more talked about prospect in this draft than Te'o, unfortunately it is all for the wrong reasons after a great career at Notre Dame. We all know that in the National Championship game this season he didn't have his best game, since then it has gone downhill fast for Te'o with the fake girlfriend scandal and then his subpar performance at the Combine. All of that said Te'o is still one of the best anchoring linebackers in this class. Te'o is very good at recognizing a play with little delay and exploding toward the ball carrier or floating into coverage. Blockers have a hard time with Te'o due to how good he is at shedding blocks while continuing towards the play, this is due in equal parts to his conditioning and his technique. Te'o tackles very well, wrapping up and limiting the upper body or arm tackles. He plays both the run and the pass very well so there isn't really any holes in his game. His recent string of bad press will undoubtedly hurt his draft stock, there are no two ways around it. Due to his scandal and lack of good personal decision making he gets the character concern label. However, Te'o will likely go in the first round and will fall to a contender making his transition so much easier and may be a blessing in disguise for his long term success.

Kevin Minter

ILB - Louisiana State University - Junior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 25
Weight: 246      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 12/03/90      3 Cone: 7.37
40-Yard Dash: 4.74      Shuttle: 4.47

Minter has been receiving high praise from many corners of the expert draft community in the lead up to the draft. While he does have some good aspects to his game I'm not as high as others may be. First the good, Minter has excellent speed and can get anywhere on the field quickly. He has very good vision and can read how a play will develop, placing him in the mix most plays. Minter is excellent in pass coverage, keeping close to his assigned receiver or keeping a close tabs on any receiver who enters his zone. I'm not a fan of his ability to shed blocks, he can get locked up with a blocker as the play goes right by him. Minter needs to work on his tackling technique as very regularly ball carriers will slip his grasp.

Kevin Reddick

ILB - University of North Carolina - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 23
Weight: 243      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 12/28/89      3 Cone: 7.13
40-Yard Dash: 4.71      Shuttle: 4.33

Reddick has just an amazing nose for the ball, sniffing out the ball carrier wherever they are on the field. He identifies plays very quickly and moves to the ball attacking rushing plays with great ferocity, often crushing plays in the backfield or dropping into coverage quickly. While in pursuit he has excellent closing speed and takes very good angles to the ball carrier. Reddick is able to flow through traffic with ease and sheds blockers very well. In pass coverage Reddick does decent for a player his size but isn't overly fast which allows for mismatches. He does very well at wrapping up ball carriers but tends to tackle a bit higher than one would expect.

Vince Williams

ILB - Florida State University – Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 250      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 110"
Birthdate: 12/27/89      3 Cone: 7.53
40-Yard Dash: 4.79      Shuttle: 4.67

Williams is a very instinctive linebacker with a great nose for the ball. He flows towards the ball, cutting through traffic with ease and attacks the ball carrier very well. Williams has superior closing speed and can track down ball carriers from behind very well. He is also a decent zone pass defender with the ability to force the ball to be thrown elsewhere. Williams flies around the field and has great sideline to sideline speed which puts him in the middle of a plays more often than not. Williams will bite on fakes or misdirection plays due to his aggressiveness. While Williams broke his leg and injured his back during his college career but neither appeared to affect his play.

Nico Johnson

ILB - Alabama – Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 248      Vertical: 30"
Age: 22      Broad: 110"
Birthdate: 06/19/90      3 Cone: 7.37
40-Yard Dash: 4.74      Shuttle: 4.38

Johnson is a unique prospect in the fact that I feel his game will improve with time. That's not to say his game is bad right now, far from it. He is a solid rush defender who loves contact and is willing to stick his nose in any play in order to help his team. Johnson has excellent tackling technique, hitting at the waist and wrapping up ball carriers. I think Johnson needs to attack the ball quicker as he tends to wait for ball carriers to come to him as opposed to going to meet the ball carrier. He will also unnecessarily take on blockers which gains him nothing, he needs to shed those blocks and keep moving to the ball carrier. He has a decent frame but could add a few pounds.

AJ Klein

ILB - Iowa State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 24
Weight: 250      Vertical: 33"
Age: 21      Broad: 113"
Birthdate: 07/30/91      3 Cone: 7.06
40-Yard Dash: 4.66      Shuttle: 4.35

Klein's best quality by far is his pass coverage. For a linebacker Klein has excellent man and zone coverage skills. In zone coverage he is very disciplined and can sense where the quarterback is wanting to throw. In man coverage he can run with receivers and has been put one on one with wide outs many time with varying degrees of success. In run support Klein is quick to identify the ball carrier and where he is headed, then moving to meet him. His tacking technique is good and bad, first the good, Klein is very good at wrapping up and smothering ball carriers. Now the bad, Klein will routinely tackle ball carriers high and will attempt to muscle them to the ground. At the next level ball carriers are going to be much stronger and this technique will no longer work. Klein also lacks the kind of sideline to sideline speed that teams are looking for from a linebacker anchoring their defense.

Bruce Taylor

ILB - Virginia Tech University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 244      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 115"
Birthdate: 12/31/89      3 Cone: 7.21
40-Yard Dash: 4.93      Shuttle: 4.35

Taylor is a very well-built, solid linebacker who does exactly what teams are looking for from a middle linebacker. Taylor is very good at diagnosing plays and reacting effectively to counter them. The second he sees a running back with the ball he flies to fill the most obvious hole and meets the player as opposed to waiting for the player to come to him. Taylor has a solid tackling technique, wrapping up ball carriers after a solid first strike. He is also fairly effective in pass coverage for a player his size. Taylor often successfully identifies where the pass will go by reading the routes and watching the quarterback's actions. On the down side he suffered a Lisfranc injury in 2011 and has suffered knee and shoulder issues in the past. Taylor isn't overly fast and I wonder if this might have to do with his Lisfranc and knee issues.

Jon Bostic

ILB - Florida - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 245      Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 05/05/91      3 Cone: 6.99
40-Yard Dash: 4.61      Shuttle: 4.24

Bostic has great size to anchor the middle in any defense, he looks every part of your prototypical linebacker. Bostic has decent speed and uses that ability to attack plays rather than let plays come to him. He will move towards the flow of the play, for better or worse, which brings us to his downside. Bostic has some trouble at times quickly identifying plays and who the ball carrier is. This will routinely put him out of position to make a play. Bostic has a huge problem fitting off blockers and it is clearly his biggest fault. Couple that with the fact that he will over-pursue plays and you have a player who, despite his talents, needs a lot of work.

Michael Mauti

ILB - Pennsylvania State University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: -
Weight: 243      Vertical: -
Age: 23      Broad: -
Birthdate: 01/19/90      3 Cone: -
40-Yard Dash: -      Shuttle: -

Mauti is a very high motor player who was consistently among the leaders at nearly every statistic associated with linebackers. He plays very instinctively and is able to read where a play is going, always seems to be where the ball is. Mauti is pretty effective in pass coverage, staying with his assigned player or carefully monitoring his zone assignment. Mauti must work on being more decisive as he will wait for the ball carrier to come his way as opposed to closing ground and engaging them. He also will at times inexplicably engage blockers as opposed to trying to evade them, this allows the play to move past him. Mauti's injury history is incredibly worrying with three knee injuries in just five years. That alone would completely devastate his draft stock.

Kiko Alonso

ILB - Oregon - Senior

Height: 6'-3"      Bench Press: 20
Weight: 238      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 08/14/90      3 Cone: 6.93
40-Yard Dash: 4.69      Shuttle: 4.18

Alonso is a quick burst linebacker who literally flies all over the field. He never slows down and doesn't take any plays off. He has excellent instincts and is in the midst of nearly every play. Alonso is relatively undersized to be an inside linebacker as he must add much more weight and muscle. He may translate better as a strong safety given his speed and frame. His multiple run ins with the law including a DUI, burglary and trespassing are extremely worrying. Coupled with the fact he tore his ACL in 2010 and he has got a lot of question marks to contend with.

Robert McCabe

ILB - Georgetown University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"	Bench Press: 16
Weight: 243	Vertical: 30"
Age: 22	Broad: 110"
Birthdate: 11/02/90	3 Cone: 6.83
40-Yard Dash: 4.76	Shuttle: 4.52

McCabe is a very instinctual linebacker who flows towards a play and keeps his eyes in the backfield. He is very smart about how he plays the game, taking calculated risks but not overdoing it either. McCabe does will closing on ball carriers in the backfield and meeting them at, or before, the line of scrimmage. He does a good job of wrapping up ball carriers when he makes contact and taking them to the ground. McCabe is solid in pass defense as well, following the quarterbacks eyes and moving to be in that spot. McCabe needs to work on not tipping his hand when he sees a run developing and attacking where he thinks the play will go. It allows the running back to react and avoid McCabe. He also needs to work on tackling a little lower as he can be a bit high with his tackles.

Tom Wort

ILB - Oklahoma – Junior

Height: 6'-0"	Bench Press: 21
Weight: 235	Vertical: 31.5"
Age: -	Broad: 111"
Birthdate: -	3 Cone: 7.41
40-Yard Dash: 4.78	Shuttle: 4.51

Wort has excellent football IQ and instincts which always put him right where he needs to be every play. He sniffs out plays very early and reacts accordingly. Wort moves to meet the ball carrier as opposed to waiting for the ball carrier to come to him. This kind of aggressiveness is what wins football games when it comes down to inches. Wort needs to work on the fact that he doesn't always wrap up and will get high from time to time. With stronger ball carriers in the NFL this kind of tackling will allow ball carriers to break free and keep moving downfield. Also, Wort needs to add some more weight to be able to make an impact in the NFL.

Jonathan Stewart

ILB - Texas A&M – Senior

Height: 6'-4"	Bench Press: 19
Weight: 242	Vertical: 31"
Age: 22	Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 11/23/90	3 Cone: 7.44
40-Yard Dash: 4.55	Shuttle: 4.53

Stewart has very good closing speed, he is able to track down even the fastest of ball carriers and make the tackle. He has great tackling technique, and wraps up ball carriers. Stewart is decent in pass coverage, reacting to the quarterback's focus and shadowing his assigned receiver. Stewart needs to work on play recognition as he will sometimes have plays go right by him before he can figure out where the ball currently is. He also needs to work on attacking a play much faster, he will many times stay in one spot and wait for the ball carrier to come near him as opposed to moving to meet the ball carrier

CORNERBACKS

Xavier Rhodes

CB - Florida State University - Junior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 210      Vertical: 40.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 132"
Birthdate: 06/19/90      3 Cone: 7.29
40-Yard Dash: 4.43      Shuttle: 4.65

Due to Rhodes size (standing 6'-2") he is able to play much more physical than most corners. He will get his hands into the chest of a receiver and will continue to disrupt their momentum and force them to alter their route. Rhodes has good high end speed in order to be able to stick with elite receivers and also has decent recovery speed to make up ground in the event of him biting hard on a fake or making a mistake. Rhodes needs to work on his zone coverage in a big way, reacting to where he thinks the ball will go rather than attacking the ball when it is in the air. He needs desperately to wrap up better as opposed to just trying to "blow up" a ball carrier. Rhodes had knee surgery in 2011 which is always a concern for such a high speed position.

Darius Slay

CB - Mississippi State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 190      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: -      Broad: 124"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.90
40-Yard Dash: 4.36      Shuttle: 4.21

There is so much to like about Slay that I feel not only is he a top 10 corner in this draft, he is easily in the top three. First off Slay is excellent in man coverage, staying right on the hip of his assigned receiver. This is easy for him as he was the fastest corner at the Combine. When the ball is in the air he always plays the ball first and the receiver second. This, coupled with his good hands, has allowed him to rack up five interceptions this season alone. Slay is an excellent tackler, hitting at the waist and wrapping up the legs as opposed to several corners who tend to go too high or too low. Slay will at times give cushions that are just too significant which allows shorter passes get completed regularly.

Desmond Trufant

CB - University of Washington - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 16
Weight: 190      Vertical: 37.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 125"
Birthdate: 09/10/90      3 Cone: 6.76
40-Yard Dash: 4.38      Shuttle: 3.85

Trufant is an absolutely amazing coverage corner. He excels in both man and zone coverage. In man he doesn't bite on sudden moves and is able to maintain close coverage of even the fastest receivers. Trufant plays the ball and not the receiver, limiting the amount of pass interference penalties he draws. He has the height and vertical jumping ability to go up and get the ball at its highest point. Trufant's run support ability is definitely the lacking part of his game. He doesn't appear very interested in attacking rushers, letting himself get blocked or waiting for the ball carrier to come to him. Couple this with his poor tackling technique and you've got a clear hole in his game.

Jamar Taylor

CB - Boise State University - Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 22
Weight: 192      Vertical: 35"
Age: -      Broad: 127"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.82
40-Yard Dash: 4.39      Shuttle: 4.06

Taylor is very good in coverage, both man and zone. He doesn't get beat deep due in larger part to his good speed. Taylor also has good hands and plays the ball which has enabled him to get four interceptions this season. He is also very physical in press coverage, jamming receivers at the line and disrupting the tempo and direction of the route runner. Taylor is very good at recognizing plays quickly and reacting to them instantly. He has excellent tackling ability, hitting ball carriers at the waist and while driving his legs. Taylor is an excellent blitzing from the corner position with 2.5 sacks in his senior year. Taylor needs to work on the angles he takes towards ball carriers as they aren't always the best and can get him in trouble from time to time. He has also dealt with more than one knee injuries in his college career which is a bit worrying.

Dee Milliner

CB - Alabama - Junior

Height: 6'-0"	Bench Press: 12
Weight: 201	Vertical: 36"
Age: 21	Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 09/14/91	3 Cone: 6.95
40-Yard Dash: 4.37	Shuttle: 4.32

Milliner is has exceptional solid man coverage skills. He has the speed and instincts to stick with receivers like glue. Even when Milliner gets out of position he will still get his hands into a receiver's interior to break up the pass without drawing pass interference calls. If a catch is made Milliner immediately brings the receiver down limiting the yards after the catch to a minimum. Milliner needs to work on wrapping up ball receiver when he makes contact. Currently he will just hit the ball carrier and hopes he will go down. He also needs to work on shedding blockers in order to get to ball carrier as he will stay engaged way too long and with too much regularity. Finally, he needs to work on not freezing when a receiver makes their break as it opens opportunities to get exploited.

Nickell Robey

CB - USC - Junior

Height: 5'-7"	Bench Press: 10
Weight: 169	Vertical: 40.5"
Age: 21	Broad: 127"
Birthdate: 01/17/92	3 Cone: 6.74
40-Yard Dash: 4.48	Shuttle: 4.09

Robey is a frustrating prospect to analyze due to his amazing talent but physical shortcomings. It's hardly a secret that in terms of size Robey is far from your prototypical corner that the NFL looks for. Measuring in at 5'-8" and 165 pounds, Wes Welker is both taller and heavier than him. However, if you can get past his size Robey is one of the best pure corners in this year's draft. His coverage skills are very good with seven interceptions returned for three touchdowns and 24 passes defended in his three years at USC. Robey has lightning speed and was a track star in college. This plays big into another plus that Robey has which is his special teams returning ability. All in all if Robey can get a team to overlook his physical size then he could make for a steal if he falls too far in the draft.

Robert Alford

CB - Southeastern Louisiana State - Senior

Height: 5'-10"	Bench Press: 17
Weight: 188	Vertical: 40"
Age: -	Broad: 132"
Birthdate: -	3 Cone: 6.89
40-Yard Dash: 4.39	Shuttle: 4.23

If we are judging Alford strictly on how he plays the game then he would be in the top five corners in this draft, he is that good. Alford seems to be born to play the position. He is an excellent coverage corner, both in man and in zone. He has very good hands and jumping ability so he can either intercept or at least break up the pass. Alford is very quick to diagnosis plays and react to make the play. On run support he flies to the ball carrier, moving with ease through traffic and usually makes, or is very close to making, the play. Alford effectively disguises when he blitzes and doesn't show his hand. His ability to return kicks is a huge plus and he is very effective at doing so. He has been playing against competition that isn't as high as one would hope for but much of what he does seems to be competition independent. An issue that is unique to Alford is that he has Crohn's Disease which is an incurable disease and affects the bowels. How this will affect him is unknown, however, he has played with it thus far in his career so it might not be a huge issue. Alford also suffered a shoulder injury during his college career.

Johnthan Banks

CB - Mississippi State University - Senior

Height: 6'-2"	Bench Press: 10
Weight: 186	Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 23	Broad: 126"
Birthdate: 10/03/89	3 Cone: 6.97
40-Yard Dash: 4.58	Shuttle: 4.28

Banks is going to be an attractive pick for any team that resides in a division with an elite, tall receiver that they have to play twice a year. This is due in part to Banks' impressive frame (6'-2" and 185 pounds) which matches up extremely well with big receivers. Mix this in with his physical play and ability to play very good in press coverage and then top it off with his ability jump high (34.5" vertical jump) and excellent hands and you've got quite the interesting prospect. However, Banks' game isn't all good news, he isn't very fast and can get beat on deep routes. He will also transition from his backpedal very quickly which makes him susceptible to short passes.

Logan Ryan

CB - Rutgers - Junior

Height: 5'-11"	Bench Press: 14
Weight: 191	Vertical: 32.5"
Age: 22	Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 02/09/92	3 Cone: 6.69
40-Yard Dash: 4.56	Shuttle: 4.06

Ryan looks to transition best to a nickel corner at the next level. He is excellent at covering short to mid-range routes in man coverage. In zone coverage Ryan is one of the best in this draft class. He transitions between receivers exceptionally well, not sticking with one receiver as they go out of his zone and keeping a constant eye on any other receivers entering his zone so that he may transition to them. Ryan does well supporting the run, sticking his nose in the middle of the play. He also has very good tackling technique, getting low and wrapping up. Ryan can get burned on deep routes as he doesn't seem super-fast. He also has problems with larger receivers who just simply overpower him.

Blidi Wreh-Wilson

CB - University of Connecticut - Senior

Height: 6-1"	Bench Press: 14
Weight: 195	Vertical: 36"

Wreh-Wilson is an excellent coverage corner, sticking with his assignment wherever he may go. He can get up and contest any ball at its highest point and break up any reception. Wreh-Wilson is a willing run defender, attacking the play and when possible making tackles with a good tackling technique. Unfortunately Wreh-Wilson tends to take bad angles when attacking a play developing out of the backfield. He gets too aggressive and running backs tend to cut inside of the angle he takes which leaves him out of place to make a play. Wreh-Wilson tends to keep his eyes on his assignment which makes it so he doesn't know if the play is developing behind him. He will at times have a running play develop just feet from him but he continues to look at his assigned receiver instead. Wreh-Wilson needs to keep an eye in the backfield and not focus so intently on his assigned receiver.

Leon McFadden

CB - San Diego State University - Senior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 10
Weight: 193      Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: 10/26/90      3 Cone: 6.81
40-Yard Dash: 4.50      Shuttle: 4.27

McFadden is an excellent coverage corner both in zone and man coverage. He plays the ball, not the receiver which allows him to disrupt passes or flat out intercept the ball. In zone coverage McFadden is true to his zone and doesn't stick to a receiver leaving his zone, instead looking for receivers coming into it to defend instead. He is also very fast and can keep up with most receivers. McFadden is flat out horrible at run support. He seems to avoid it at all costs by being slow to attack, getting wrapped up with defenders or just flat out missing ball carriers. Furthermore, his tackling technique is non-existent as he tends to go high on ball carriers.

Tyrann Mathieu

CB - Louisiana State University - Junior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 4
Weight: 186      Vertical: 34"
Age: 20      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 05/13/92      3 Cone: 6.87
40-Yard Dash: 4.50      Shuttle: 4.14

Ahhh the Honey Badger. Mathieu earned the nickname the Honey Badger due to his tough play, doing what he wants to do on the field and not caring. I cleaned that up some but nonetheless the nickname was given to him in 2011 and has stuck with him. On to his skills, Mathieu is probably the best pure nickel corner in this draft. He has the speed and coverage skills to cover even the speediest slot receivers. In run support Mathieu flies to the ball and navigates well through traffic. He is extremely aggressive in his hitting and tackling, delivering punishment for coming his way. Mathieu has good hands and is always attacking the ball by ripping or swatting at it to cause fumbles. He is also very effective blitzing, a rare bonus from a defensive back. Mathieu's size could work against him, at 5'-9" he has a lot of problems competing for the ball against taller receivers. There is of course his widely publicized off the field issues which lead him to miss the 2012 season. Finally, how will a year not playing affect his performance. As good as Mathieu is, he has a lot of question marks surrounding him.

Terry Hawthorne

CB - University of Illinois - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 13
Weight: 195      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 23      Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 01/01/90      3 Cone: 6.88
40-Yard Dash: 4.31      Shuttle: 4.24

Hawthorne's college career is either feast for famine, one year he looks like the best corner back in the country, the next year he is barely noticeable. As a junior Hawthorne was driven and motivated to make plays, as a senior he just seems to blend into the background. As a junior he would deliver devastating big hits on receivers, as a senior he gets flagged for bad hits. As a junior he would fly up to help in run support, as a senior he is easily blocked and rarely makes a tackle of a ball carrier in the backfield. As a junior Hawthorne's pass defense was excellent, as a senior he takes way to long to react to passes in front of him. Overall the question most NFL teams will be asking is whether they will get the Hawthorne who played in his junior year or the one who played his senior year. Hawthorne has dealt with foot injuries throughout his career and a very bad concussion in his junior year. You don't want to but you have to wonder how badly the concussion affects him and his play.

Jordan Poyer

CB - Oregon State University – Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 8
Weight: 191      Vertical: 30.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 05/25/91      3 Cone: 6.87
40-Yard Dash: 4.54      Shuttle: 4.18

Poyer's strong suit has to be his man pass defense, while there are things to like, there are some holes which are worrying. Poyer is good at making contact at the snap and disrupting a receivers initial moves, however he could be a little more aggressive in sticking with his initial contact a bit longer. He also does very well with short to mid-range coverage, blanketing receiver and disrupting passes very regularly. However, in long range coverage his lack of speed catches up with him. Poyer is very good at identifying plays as they develop and reacting accordingly, this include rushing plays in which he attacks the ball carrier very quickly. However, he will bite on moves or take angles on a ball carrier which take him out of the play. A bonus attribute Poyer holds is his ability to return kicks and play special teams. There is no quicker way to make a team than on special teams so luckily for Poyer he will get a chance to develop and be coached up while getting some playing time on special teams.

SAFETIES

Safeties

Kenny Vaccaro

S - Texas – Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 15
Weight: 214      Vertical: 38"
Age: 22      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: 02/15/91      3 Cone: 6.78
40-Yard Dash: 4.63      Shuttle: 4.06

There is so much to love about Vaccaro's game. As one of the head and shoulders top prospects at safety in this class, as one would expect, he does so many things right. Simply put, while Vaccaro plays the position of safety it's also what he provides to his team. Almost no plays get behind him and he keeps the game in front of him. Vaccaro has amazing instincts and is almost always where the ball is. He identifies and breaks very fast on running plays. Vaccaro is very good in either zone or man coverage and is reacts well to the ball in the air. His tackling technique is very good with solid contact and wrapping up of the ball carrier. Vaccaro was arrested for failure to obey a police officer and he does get chippy on the field as well. Coaches are going to need to keep a close eye on him.

Eric Reid

S - Louisiana State University - Junior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 213      Vertical: 40.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 134"
Birthdate: 12/10/91      3 Cone: 6.99
40-Yard Dash: 4.53      Shuttle: 4.22

While some safeties are more comfortable either in pass coverage or defending the run, Reid is truly balanced in his overall game. In rush defense Reid quickly identifies the ball carrier and flows through traffic very well to meet the ball carrier. In pass defense Reid is a natural. He does well combining his reading of receivers reactions and watching the quarterback's eyes. In doing so he puts himself in great position to regularly make plays on most passes. When tackling Reid squares up well and hits a ball carrier with great force and impact. However, when doing so he will many times try to tackle above the waist which can lead to broken tackles.

Matt Elam

S - Florida - Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 208      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 21      Broad: 118"
Birthdate: 09/21/91      3 Cone: 6.87
40-Yard Dash: 4.54      Shuttle: 4.01

Elam will make a very good strong safety whose primary role is run support. This is due to Elam's above average ability to recognize, attack and stop running plays in the backfield. Elam does not wait for a ball carrier to come to him, he attacks the play with enthusiasm. In pass coverage Elam is decent in short to mid-range protection but his skills deteriorate the deeper the pass is. When the pass is in front of him Elam first attacks the ball, if he can't get to the ball before it makes it to the receiver then Elam keeps the gain at a minimum. Elam needs to work on his tackling technique as he rarely tries to wrap a ball carrier up, opting instead for highlight hits. An arrest for possession of alcohol which isn't a huge deal but any time a player gets arrested, no matter what the charge it requires some clarification by NFL teams.

Bacarri Rambo

S - Georgia – Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 211      Vertical: 34"
Age: 22      Broad: 117"
Birthdate: 06/27/90      3 Cone: 6.94
40-Yard Dash: 4.50      Shuttle: 4.31

Rambo is a beast of a safety, he flies to the ball wherever it is on the field. Rambo has free safety coverage skills but strong safety hitting ability, making vicious contact whenever possible. He has the great habit of creating turnovers through stripping, ripping and batting at the ball while the ball carrier is being stood up. Rambo has decent speed which allows him to play sideline to sideline on deep plays. He also has very good hands which allowed him to amass 16 interceptions in his college career. Rambo tends to hit ball carriers high which can allow for broken tackles. He also tries to go for the knockout shot and doesn't wrap up consistently. A big issue is the fact that he has failed more than one drug test which is just not acceptable.

Zeke Motta

S - Notre Dame - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 11
Weight: 213      Vertical: 35.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 126"
Birthdate: 05/14/90      3 Cone: 6.75
40-Yard Dash: 4.83      Shuttle: 4.16

Here's a real easy comparison, if you like Harrison Smith then you'll like Zeke Motta. Beyond both playing for Notre Dame and being best friends, their games are nearly identical in every aspect. Motta is excellent in run support, flying up from his position to meet the ball carrier many times before he even has left the backfield. Motta delivers punishing hits anywhere on the field, plowing full bore into a ball carrier with reckless abandon. He is also very quick, allowing him to be in the midst of nearly every play whether it be a pass or rush. Motta's big flaw is his over-exuberance, he will be in such a hurry to make a play that he will often fly right by the ball carrier or be easily brushed aside by using his momentum against himself.

Phillip Thomas

S - Fresno State University - Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 14
Weight: 208      Vertical: 35"
Age: 24      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 03/01/89      3 Cone: 6.78
40-Yard Dash: 4.57      Shuttle: 4.15

Thomas does everything you'd ask of a safety, he is always ends up within five yards of the ball in most plays. Thomas is very quick and able to turn up the speed to get into the action. He moves quickly to attack the run and is quick to differentiate between rushes and passes. Thomas is very good in both man and zone coverage with the ability to break up and, at times, intercept the ball due to his good hands. Thomas' angles when attacking a ball carrier could be, and should get, better. When he makes contact with a ball carrier he tends to tackle high and can be shaken off by stronger ball carriers. Thomas suffered a broken leg in 2011 but appears to have completely healed from that injury.

TJ McDonald

S - USC - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 219      Vertical: 40"
Age: 22      Broad: 131"
Birthdate: 01/26/91      3 Cone: 6.89
40-Yard Dash: 4.59      Shuttle: 4.20

McDonald is a very large safety, standing over 6'-3" and weighing in at 205 pounds. He also has excellent speed and owns the deep real estate he is tasked with defending. McDonald has good hands and could even be described as a ball hawk with eight interceptions in three years of starting. McDonald is a vicious hitter, plowing full bore into ball carriers. He needs to work on his tackling technique however as he hits way too high and very rarely wraps up, opting for the highlight reel hit instead. This isn't going to work in the NFL where many of his targets will simply bounce off hits like this and keep moving downfield.

Johnathan Cyprien

S - Florida International University - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 18
Weight: 217      Vertical: 38.5"
Age: -      Broad: 119"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.01
40-Yard Dash: 4.60      Shuttle: 4.44

Cyprien is one of those few small school prospects that draft followers constantly look for. He has a ton of talent and I think he will be a big success at the next level. Cyprien, first off, is a big-time hitter. He can lay hits that will put a ball carrier flat on his back or dislodge the ball. Cyprien is excellent in run support, coming up fearlessly and making the tackle. In pass coverage Cyprien is very good in zone coverage, keeping his eyes on the quarterback and either jumping routes or making a hit just as the receiver catches the ball. In man coverage Cyprien is good, but could use some work. He is able to shadow receivers very well but doesn't look back at the quarterback enough to know if a pass is coming or not. This will likely lead to a lot of pass interference penalties in the NFL.

Shamarko Thomas

S - Syracuse - Senior

Height: 5'-9"      Bench Press: 28
Weight: 213      Vertical: 40.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 133"
Birthdate: 02/01/91      3 Cone: 6.84
40-Yard Dash: 4.42      Shuttle: 4.26

One immediate thing that stood out about Thomas is his quick play recognition. He is able to see a play develop and in next to no time he has diagnosed what is happening and is able to react accordingly. He is good in run support, flying into the backfield more often than not to help stop the play before it goes anywhere. Thomas has top notch speed which helps him both track down rushers and keep up with even the fastest of receivers. He has above average man and zone coverage skills, never really blowing his assignment. Thomas also has decent hands and can intercept passes with no problems. His tackling technique is technically sound, hitting at the waist and wrapping up. However, Thomas will abandon tackling technique for big hit from time to time. This doesn't always work which places his team, and himself, in jeopardy. He can be excitable at times, getting too anxious which makes him reckless. Thomas will bite on jukes and get off-balance as the ball carrier slips by.

Duke Williams

S - Nevada - Senior

Height: 5'-11"      Bench Press: 13
Weight: 203      Vertical: 37.5"
Age: 22      Broad: 126"
Birthdate: 10/15/90      3 Cone: 7.17
40-Yard Dash: 4.48      Shuttle: 4.00

Williams flies around the field like he has been fired out of a gun. He has top-end elite speed which helps him get in the middle of any play, pass or rush, anywhere on the field. With this speed he is able to track down a ball carrier from behind or make up ground while a pass is in the air. The good news is he doesn't have to make up ground regularly as his man coverage skills are top notch. He is also very good in zone due to his ability to close on a receiver and disrupt a pass as evidenced by 22 pass disrupted in three years of starting. Williams is just vicious in the hits he delivers, it is as if he has no regard for his body, much less the well-being of his target. This can get him in trouble though as he rarely wraps up. He will come in high and hot many times and has to rescue himself by simply pushing a player off his feet. Williams also can get out of control in his desire to make a big hit or big play that he will get himself out of position or diving to make a tackle and gets easily avoided.

Tony Jefferson

S - Oklahoma – Junior

Height: 5'-10"      Bench Press: 16
Weight: 213      Vertical: -
Age: 21      Broad: -
Birthdate: 01/27/92      3 Cone: 7.27
40-Yard Dash: 4.64      Shuttle: 4.21

Jefferson is very quick to identify plays and react accordingly which always puts him in the middle of the action. He has good tackling technique, wrapping up the ball carrier and taking them to the ground. Jefferson tends not to get wrapped up with blockers, however, when he does get wrapped up he has a hard time shedding them. He will often over-commit when making tackles which allows ball carriers to break his grasp or whiffing completely. Jefferson will sometimes take bad angles which puts him out of position to make the play. At times he go for big hits and lower his head, which will draw penalties, putting himself at risk and makes him take his eye on the ball carrier.

Robert Lester

S - Alabama – Senior

Height: 6'-1"      Bench Press: 7
Weight: 220      Vertical: 34"
Age: -      Broad: 121"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 7.25
40-Yard Dash: 4.60      Shuttle: 4.34

Lester is just an all-around solid player at safety. Lester is a good zone coverage safety who watches the play unfold and keeps an eye on the quarterback so as to provide support over the top when it is needed. In man coverage Lester could be better but he has the great knack of undercutting routes to disrupt them or even intercept the ball. Lester isn't your typical ball hawk but nonetheless he is one with 14 interceptions in his college career and two multiple interception games. In run support Lester is decent and will make tackles but doesn't fly to ball carriers as some safeties do. If I had to find fault with Lester it would have to be his speed which isn't elite and could prove to give him some problems in the NFL.

DJ Swearinger

S - University of South Carolina - Senior

Height: 6'-0"      Bench Press: 17
Weight: 210      Vertical: 37"
Age: -      Broad: 124"
Birthdate: -      3 Cone: 6.70
40-Yard Dash: 4.67      Shuttle: 4.11

Swearinger is an above average safety that looks to be a good mid-round pick for a team looking to solidify their safety position. Swearinger is good in zone pass defense disrupting any plays coming into the area he is responsible for. He has shown some good hands at times, making some impressive interceptions. Swearinger is known for some big hits on ball receivers when they are trying to make catches. However, I'm very disappointed with how he attacks running backs or quarterbacks coming out of the backfield, he simple waits for them or takes bad angles in an attempt to make a tackle. I'm not particularly impressed with his ability to recognize plays quickly either as he takes longer to react than one would prefer. When playing man coverage Swearinger can get beat due to a lack of high end speed so teams are going to need to keep plays in front of him if they expect him to make an impact.

Rashard Hall

S - Clemson - Senior

Height: 6'-2"      Bench Press: 19
Weight: 210      Vertical: 36"
Age: 23      Broad: 122"
Birthdate: 09/07/89      3 Cone: 6.87
40-Yard Dash: 4.68      Shuttle: 4.21

Hall is another one of those Jekyll and Hyde players that is either going to look great on a team that currently lacks his talents or really bad on a team that is already strong at his strengths. First off he is a very solid zone pass defender as evidenced by his 14 interceptions during his college career. Hall plays the ball very well and has solid hands. He follows the quarterback's eyes and closes very quickly when the ball is in the air. Hall is not very good at run support, sure he is willing and will come up to assist in tackles, but if asked to make the tackle on his own then this is where the issue arises. He is not a very good tackler, he tackles high, he doesn't wrap up and he will try to go for the big hit, missing more often than not. He is slow to move towards a rusher and tends to stop right before contact as opposed to running through a hit. Hall is almost exclusively a coverage safety.

JJ Wilcox

S - Georgia Southern University - Senior

Height: 6'-0"	Bench Press: 17
Weight: 213	Vertical: 35"
Age: -	Broad: 124"
Birthdate: -	3 Cone: 7.02
40-Yard Dash: 4.57	Shuttle: 4.09

Wilcox is very strong in one part of his game, but isn't all that strong in the other part. His strong suit is by far his rush defense. Wilcox quickly identifies the rush and flies through traffic to meet the ball carrier. He delivers a strong, controlled hit and wraps up the ball carrier. However, in pass coverage he is not very good. He is OK in man coverage but bites on almost every move a receiver makes. In zone he looks lost more often than not, to the point he may not fully understand his role in the defense on these plays. Wilcox also has played lower level talent so NFL teams may not be willing to take a risk on a player with holes like he has coupled with a lack of top-notch competition.

Ray Ray Armstrong

S - University of Miami - Senior

Height: 6'-3"	Bench Press: 18
Weight: 216	Vertical: 34.5"
Age: 23	Broad: 116"
Birthdate: 05/05/89	3 Cone: 7.20
40-Yard Dash: 4.69	Shuttle: 4.24

Armstrong is going to be a very, VERY difficult prospect to evaluate. The biggest issue is going to be how well he still plays after being suspended from the University of Miami since July of 2012 for being dishonest during a school investigation. Clearly this reflects incredibly bad upon his character as well. On the field Armstrong is an above average player with excellent run support capability. He will quickly identify a run play and is able to hone in on the ball carrier, usually making or assisting in the tackle. Armstrong is just average in pass protection as he tends to bite on the moves of faster receivers which places him out of position when the pass is made. Dishonestly is taken very seriously by the NFL so Armstrong is going to have to come equipped with some really good answers when he meets with teams.

Earl Wolff

S - North Carolina State University - Senior

Height: 5'-11"	Bench Press: -
Weight: 209	Vertical: 39"
Age: -	Broad: 134"
Birthdate: -	3 Cone: 6.96
40-Yard Dash: 4.40	Shuttle: 4.07

Wolff just isn't one of those players who really impressed me. He just seems to be out of position on most plays, being basically where the ball isn't. Wolff will sell hard on guess, fly to the spot he thinks the ball will be and as it turns out the play is nowhere near him. He will bite on play action or fake hand offs, completely selling out and then gets burned. In coverage he will bite on fake cuts or head fakes, get off balance and the receiver will go right by him. Finally, he is very slow to react to how a play is unfolding, requiring too much time to process what he is seeing.
